Call for stadium vote expected today

by KURT BAER

James T. Ryan, Arlington Heights village president, is expected to call for a referendum on the proposed Chicago Bears football stadium at a 6 p.m. press conference today.

Ryan, who up to now has not taken a position on the controversial stadium proposal or public demands for a referendum on the project, Monday confirmed his plan for the evening press conference.

"I think what I have to say will answer a lot of questions" (about the possibility of a stadium referendum), he said. "No one on the village board has ever ruled out a referendum on the thing. I think we're getting closer to a situation where all the facts are known."

Village administrators Monday were researching state laws governing referendums, and the cost of recent special elections in Arlington Heights.

ELECTION COSTS generally run between $10,000 and $15,000.

Pressure for a vote on village financing for the $35 million stadium project has been mounting in recent days, following the plan commission's 6-to-4 decision Aug. 6 which approved the stadium land use plan.

The plan commission's recommendation added impetus to a petition drive, organized by Kay Muller, 418 S. Lincoln Ln., aimed at revoking Arlington Heights' home-rule powers if the village board votes to finance the stadium without a referendum.

On Aug. 7, Trustee David Griffin, Ryan's opponent in the April village election, announced his support for a stadium referendum. Griffin said he will ask the village board to go on record as being opposed to final approval of the stadium without a popular vote of Arlington Heights residents.

If, as expected, Ryan announced his support for a referendum today, a vote on the stadium would be likely. The only trustee who has publicly opposed the stadium referendum is trustee Richard Durava, who has said village trustees were elected to make the final decision.

DURAVA GENERALLY has been skeptical of the stadium proposal, and voted against retaining two investment banking firms as advisors to the village.

The firms, John Nuveen & Co. and Smith, Barney, Inc., are expected to meet with Madison Square Garden and Chicago Bears officials this week to discuss the feasibility of financing the stadium with municipal revenue bonds.

Village Atty. Jack M. Siegel is also expected to attend the meetings.

If a stadium referendum is scheduled, Madison Square Garden Corp. and the Chicago Bears apparently would have the job of promoting the project among village residents.

It is unclear at this time whether village trustees would take a position in a referendum campaign. At least three trustees — Alice Harms, Madeline Schroeder and Griffin — have been skeptical about the project.

IN DECIDING to call a referendum, village trustees would have to decide whether to make the vote binding on future board action, or merely advisory.

Under its home rule powers, the board could override the results of the vote.

A stadium referendum may also put new pressure on Madison Square Garden and the Chicago Bears to reconsider private financing for the stadium, or may even cause them to drop the project.

Madison Square Garden and Bears officials have said that interest costs on money to build the stadium would be too high for them to successfully finance the project.

'New business attitude needed'

The Village of Arlington Heights should adopt a more positive attitude toward business and industry, village officials were told Monday night.

Restrictive ordinances, lengthy plan commission proceedings and a village board that listens only to objecting residents were singled out for having given Arlington Heights a bad reputation among industrialists and other business leaders.

"I'm one of those developers that would much rather find another place to do business than Arlington Heights," said Arthur Pipenhagen, of Smith-Pipenhagen Inc., industrial real estate brokers. "Arlington Heights has been one of the most negative towns I've known. It's to the point that you fear to come into this town."

PIPENHAGEN TOLD the village board's legal committee, which is considering the possible formation of an industrial development commission, that a commission of business and industry representatives should be appointed to act as a liaison between village government and private developers.

Such a commission, he said, could work "magic." "You'd have all your problems solved."

Bruce Dodds, vice president of the First Arlington National Bank, said residents have forced village officials into rejecting commerce and industry.

"For too long, the opinions of residents, and what they want to do with my money, has pervaded the village hall," Dodds said.

Often developers are treated "as if they were some kind of criminal," he said.

Dodds predicted downtown Arlington Heights would never be redeveloped until the parking problem is solved, and then the only type of development that would be economically feasible would be high-rise office and apartment buildings, he said.

A PEDESTRIAN shopping mall, which has been proposed at different times for the central business district, would be "spitting into the wind" because of the Woodfield and Randhurst shopping centers that border Arlington Heights on two sides, he said.

Trustee David Griffin, who proposed the industrial development commission to attract new business to Arlington Heights, said the village must broaden its tax base. Otherwise, it will be forced to cut municipal services or raise taxes to an unbearable level.

"One thing is going to be very apparent to the taxpayer, and that is that we are not a wealthy town, despite appearances to the contrary," he said.

Ailing motorist rescued by 'Good Samaritan'

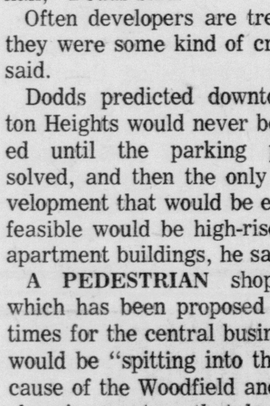
by DIANE MERMIGAS

Alone and stranded on a highway, it took Peter Smith, 38, of McHenry, 40 minutes to flag down someone concerned enough to stop and help a man in trouble. The result is that Tony Ruble, of Rolling Meadows, has a friend for life.

Ruble, 25, of 2310 Algonquin Pkwy., was on his way home through rush-hour traffic on Ill. Rte. 53, when he spotted Smith attempting to flag down someone to help him.

Smith, who had parked on the shoulder of the road, was waving a handkerchief out of the window of his car. He could not stand up outside, because his right leg, which had turned white and numb, was throbbing painfully, he said.

RUBLE WAS THE only passing motorist who stopped. He helped the ailing Smith into his car and drove him to Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, where Smith underwent emergency surgery to remove a blood clot.



Tony Ruble

Smith would have lost either his leg or his life if he was delayed any longer in getting to the hospital, doctors

He returned home from the hospital last week. He has not forgotten "the kindness" Ruble showed him, he said.

"I owe Tony my life. I was so fortunate that someone like him stopped to help me. I've got to repay him somehow. We plan to have him and his wife

Metered parking and crowded parking lots pose a problem for downtown planners.

'Adequate room' or $1,600 per space demanded

Parking laws hurt development?

by LINDA PUNCH
(Second of a three-part series)

Arlington Heights businessmen and village officials often disagree on the obstacles hindering downtown redevelopment.

But one issue crops up in almost every discussion of downtown problems — the village's strict parking requirements.

"I'm convinced that a lot could be done in developing Arlington Heights with a little more cooperation on the part of the village. I know of many people who are thinking of constructing large buildings but won't because of the parking requirements," said Nicholas Lattof, a major property owner in the downtown area.

UNDER VILLAGE law, a developer must provide adequate off-street parking for his building or pay a fee equivalent to $1,600 per space. The money contributed goes into a village parking fund that may someday be used to improve downtown parking for all businesses through construction of a parking garage.

Village merchants and property owners claim the fee is unrealisitc and restrictive. Lattof said he paid "nearly $23,000 for parking" when he built the Evergreen Shopping Center.

"What did I get out of it — nothing. I provided parking but they said it wasn't enough. Did they provide additional parking near the center — no," he said.

A 1973 study of the central business district bears out Lattof's contention that parking spaces are not conveniently located for many storeowners. The study stated that the parking problem is not because of a shortage of parking spaces but to "the inappropriate . . . distribution of those parking spaces."

THE REPORT also notes that current parking facilities will not support new development and that the "cost of on-site parking is prohibitive" to developers.

Donald Morton, president of Arlington Heights Federal Savings and Loan, said the village is defeating any moves for new development in the downtown area with the ordinance.

"If we totally eliminated the parking requirements, we might have more development. We've got too many small parcels of land, and builders just can't provide parking on their grounds," he said.

"Whenever someone looks at a project, parking requirements and the resulting expense are considered. Developers just can't provide enough, space-wise or cost-wise," he added.

PARKING IS the "big key" to downtown redevelopment, said Irving Robbin, owner of Persin and Robbin Jewelers.

"To limit parking to the spaces currently available is not a realistic approach to redevelopment," he said.

Morton said the parking fee is "not the total solution" to the parking problem.

"It doesn't necessarily provide space for your customer near your place of business. You're paying out money and you're not getting the exact benefit you need," he said.

Village Planner Joseph Kesler also finds the parking requirements too restrictive, noting that village officials "are almost asking for the same amount of parking in this area as in outlying shopping centers."

"IT'S GOOD TO be restrictive but not if you kill the chicken before it's born," he said.

A 1972 study of the downtown area said the village parking requirements "require large capital expenditures in land or cash not justified by the present level of business."

A second study, completed in 1973, said the village parking ordinances "inhibit development" in the downtown area. The study noted that a nine-story building with a store on the first floor, offices on the next seven floors and a restaurant on the top floor would require a parking garage of the same floor space.

"The developer would have to buy another parcel of land and build a garage of almost the same size. Most builders just can't afford this," Kesler said.

Bears' arena may be put to a vote

Arlington Heights Village Pres. James T. Ryan is expected to call for a referendum on the proposed Chicago Bears' football stadium at a press conference at 6 p.m. today. Ryan said "I think what I have to say will answer a lot of questions about the possibility of a stadium referendum." Ryan previously has avoided taking a position on the controversial issue. Village administrators Monday were researching state laws governing referendums and the cost of recent special elections in Arlington Heights. Pressure for a vote on the financing for the $35 million project has been mounting since the plan commission approved the stadium land-use plan by a 6-to-4 vote Aug. 6. Cost of an election is estimated at $10,000 to $15,000.

Tot drives car through garage

A 19-month-old Hoffman Estates boy got his first stab at driving Monday morning — right through the family garage and onto busy Higgins Road. The youngster, Dennis Schlaffer, was not injured in the mishap, but his mother, Marguerite Schlaffer, 22, of 109 Alpine Ln., was hurt when the garage door collapsed on her. She was released after treatment at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights. Mrs. Schlaffer had gotten out of the car to open the overhead door to the new garage about 9:55 a.m., leaving the car's engine running, police said. Dennis reportedly hopped out of the baby seat in the vehicle and took his place behind the steering wheel. He shifted the car into drive and it lurched into the garage door and through the rear wall. The car continued down an embankment and onto four-lane Higgins Road. It jumped a median curbing, knocking down a traffic sign, police said. The brief escapade ended when a passing motorist, Lester Arnold, 2 S. Springinsguth Rd., Schaumburg, stopped his car, jumped out and ran alongside the wayward vehicle, police said. Arnold leaped into the moving car and guided it to safety at Higgins Road and Arizona Boulevard. Mrs. Schlaffer was ticketed for leaving a motor vehicle unattended and striking state property. She is scheduled to appear Sept. 5 in the Hoffman Estates branch of Circuit Court.

Palatine OKs sodium-vapor lights

The Palatine Village Board has recommended the installation of sodium-vapor street lights in new business, commercial and residential areas. Robert Miller, director of public works and engineering, recommended in a report to the board that the lights be required in business and commercial areas not adjacent to older residential areas and the exclusive use of sodium-vapor lights in one new residential area and at hazardous intersections. "This (the new residential area) would provide one long-term experimental area. People who moved in would not already be used to mercury-vapor lights," Miller said. The recommendations follow a five-week test program in both a residential and commercial area with five different types of lights and reflectors.

Speaks at area press conference

Reagan to challenge Ford: Crane

Ronald Reagan will definitely challenge President Gerald Ford for the Republican presidential nomination in 1976, Rep. Philip Crane, R-12th, said during a press conference Monday night.

"I will do everything I can on behalf of his candidacy," Crane said during the press conference at the Lincolnshire Marriott, adding that his position is not an effort to malign Ford but that Regan has "demonstrable talents of administration. Reagan's performance as governor of California was extraordinary," Crane said.

He credited Reagan with taking the biggest, most unmanageable state in the country from "an 800 million deficit and turning it into a surplus." Crane also said that one of Reagan's most significant accomplishments was welfare reform which Crane said is needed on the federal level.

Philip Crane

CRANE SAID HE thinks Reagan's challenge is healthy for the Republican Party to promote the public dialog on the fundamental positions where the Republican Party stands today. "Ford has not yet reasserted the traditional Republican positions that Nixon repudiated, on such subjects as deficit spending and wage and price controls."

It also will be necessary for Ford to campaign on his record because he was not elected, Crane said. Republicans also will need a challenge in the primary to overcome the publicity the Democrats will have in their primary race, he said.

Crane said Ford has the advantage now, but that there is a growing conservative sentiment in the nation. He also said Reagan could win the primary.

Crane discounted chances that Alabama Governor George Wallace could win the Democratic nomination. "I would guess they (Democrats) would find it irresistable to give us another McGovern (S.D. Sen. George) rather than Wallace.

"ROCKEFELLER IS basically a liability as a vice-presidential candidate," Crane said, but he predicted if Ford wins the primary, Rockefeller probably will be named as his running mate.

Despite Crane's support of Reagan, a Reagan victory would not draw Crane into the administration. "He needs me more in the house than in an administrative position."

Crane also took the opportunity to discuss the nation's economic position, saying predictions now call for an $88 billion national deficit, double last year's deficit.

"I think the deficit could go to $100 billion." Crane also criticized recent congressional approval of pay increases. He said it is unlikely Ford will veto the increases, which are geared to cost of living.

"It's galling because these fellows have insulated themselves from the effects of inflation" by giving themselves pay hikes. They never have to bring this up again and the raises will no longer be an issue, Crane added.

'Keep some price controls,' plead gas dealers

by ANNE SLAVICEK

Gasoline service station owners pleaded with the Federal Energy Administration Monday to push for some continued price controls on gasoline to prevent oil companies from setting pump prices.

At a meeting in Chicago, station owners told federal administrators that they prefer limited government regulation rather than being left to the control of the oil companies.

Calling for an allocation or rationing program, dealers said the government's effort to conserve gasoline by raising prices is not working.

They scoffed at a prediction by one federal administrator that gasoline will increase by 4 or 5 cents at the pump if President Gerald Ford vetoes Congress' six-month extension of the Emergency Petroleum Allocation Act.

INSTEAD, the retailers predicted a jump of 11 cents to 13 cents a gallon if Ford comes through with the veto he has promised.

Ford's veto would end all price controls on gasoline and leave the FEA powerless against price hikes by the oil companies.

The retailers, who met Monday are members of the nationwide Retail Dealers Advisory Committee set up by the FEA.

The committee reaffirmed a resolution it endorsed in June, urging legislation "to correct inequities in present price controls . . . and for gradual elimination of price controls on crude oil."

But the group voted down a resolution to ask Ford not to veto the 6-month extension until a compromise is reached.

THE DEALERS were apparently influenced by one federal administrator's warning that the second resolution might thwart any compromise and could result in continuation of existing controls for several years.

The group, which will meet next in Seattle, includes operators of large and small service stations, car wash and truck-stop owners, commercial and industrial users of fuel, environmentalists along with state and local government representatives.

John Vernon, deputy assistant FEA administrator and chairman of Monday's meeting, predicted price increases of 4 or 5 cents a gallon after price controls expire.

But service station owners countered with their own predictions of 11-to-13 cent increases in pump prices, and called for maintaining some measure of federal price control.

Vernon argued openly with the dealers, calling for "free prices" for gasoline.

"We will do what we can to back the federal government out of the petroleum industry," Vernon said of his agency's role if Ford vetoes the measures.

CHARLES L. Binsted, executive director of the National Congress of Petroleum Retailers called for a compromise between Congress and the President.

He said if oil companies can live with recent pledges to keep increases to 2 or 3 cents per gallon, they can also live with government regulations.

Binsted questioned whether "free pricing" would work if gasoline supplies were limited sharply, as they were during the Arab oil embargo.

Other retailers called for the government to begin an intensive conservation program. George W. Burleson, a gas station owner from California, said the major oil companies are using advertising to encourage increased use of gasoline.

"This whole committee has been recommending an allocation program for over a year," Burleson reminded the FEA officials at the meeting.

Vernon said he didn't believe the public would accept rationing "in this time of peace and ease."

A FEW DEALERS agreed, talking about the right to drive a car as "an expression of freedom."

Others demanded that government administrators tell them how much Ford thinks the price of gasoline will have to rise before demand starts to decrease.

"Consumers believe that the price is up and now we have plenty," Binsted said.

Edward Haddad, owner of a small service station in Pennsylvania, said he hoped new regulations will keep the oil companies from tripling lease prices for stations.

Haddad predicted "the oil companies want to take over all the stations and then control the price."

Abolish oil import fees; Ford may veto price lid bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal appeals court Monday overturned President Ford's licensing fee program for imported oil on which consumers, especially in the Northeast, had blamed skyrocketing home heating bills.

The court ruled that Ford, and his predecessor, President Nixon, did not have the power to act outside the law just because they decided there was a national emergency.

At Vail, Colo., White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Ford had already been strongly considering lifting the licensing fees as one option, along with vetoing the extension of oil price control authority which Congress has passed.

THE COMBINATION could result in more domestic production, reducing imports by 1.4 million barrels a day by 1977, according to administration planners, Nessen said.

Those who brought the suit — eight states, 10 oil companies and Rep. Robert F. Drinan, D-Mass. — argued that the law which gave the President the power to "adjust imports" restricted him to imposing direct controls such as quotas, and did not give him the power to impose fees which were in the end passed on to the consumer.

The court in a 2-1 decision agreed, although it added: "We recognize that we are overturning an honest attempt by the President to find a solution to a difficult crisis. At stake is nothing less than our country's economic freedom and survival.

"There is no controversy over the need for action to extricate this country from its increasingly dangerous dependence on foreign petroleum. Spending on foreign oil has increased from $2.7 billion in 1970 to about $24 billion in 1974. In 1973 the United States was subjected to an oil embargo with disastrous economic consequences."

But it said the President was "without substantive authority to impose license fees of the magnitude at issue here."

ACTING FEDERAL Energy Administration chief John Hill said "given the need to reduce our vulnerability on imported oil, and the fact of Congress's lack of action on implementing a comprehensive energy program, we are concerned that the Court of Appeals has acted to remove the only specific safeguard we currently have against increasing dependence on foreign nations for much of our energy requirements. We are not studying the court's decision and examing alternate courses of action with the Justice Department and the White House."

A spokesman for Drinan said the licensing fees if fully implemented this year would have cost $4.8 billion, an "onerous burden" for consumers. As it is, he said, the plantiffs in the case will probably seek restitution for the money already collected, estimated at $1.5 billion, perhaps in the form of a downward adjustment in fuel bills in the future.

In January Ford raised the fees on imported crude oil to 21 cents per barrel and to 63 cents per barrel on petroleum products. He later imposed a $3 supplemental fee per barrel of imported oil to be instituted in three steps.

AN ARTIST'S conception shows Viking orbiter with the planet Mars below it. The lander, at bottom, still enclosed in its protective aero-shell, has been released from the orbiter and is headed for the surface. A parachute deploys at 20,000 feet and retrorockets will further slow the craft for a soft landing. It will take the spaceship one year to reach Mars.

Stuck valve forces Viking launch delay

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — A stuck two-inch valve, similar to the one in a bathroom sink, forced a three-day delay Monday in the launch of a Viking spacecraft on a $1 billion, 505-million-mile search for life on Mars.

Nearly four hours after the defective valve was discovered in the guidance mechanism of the rocket motors strapped to the Titan's first stage, space agency officials announced the launch was re-scheduled for Thursday at 4:08 p.m. CDT.

NASA scientists said the three-day delay in the launch would not prevent the Viking spacecraft from touching down on Mars on July Fourth, 1976. In fact, because of movement of the planets, it will arrive in orbit a day earlier — on June 15 — than if it had been launched Monday.

NASA allowed two weeks in its schedule for orbiting around Mars while scientists examine photos from the spacecraft to make certain the selected landing area is safe for the bicentennial touchdown.

The problem in the valve was discovered during a test less than two hours before the scheduled 3:59 p.m. CDT launch Monday.

Headquarters burned

LISBON, Portugal (UPI) — Left-wing marines firing automatic weapons and throwing percussion grenades fought their way through an anti-Communist lynch mob in the northern city of Braga Monday and rescued 20 Communists trapped inside a garden.

"The Communists must die!" some in the crowd shouted before the marines arrived.

The government troops pushed through the menacing crowds into the garden behind the Communist party headquarters which mobs burned down earlier in the day, then battled their way out with the Communists behind a curtain of exploding smoke and percussion grenades.

Police said the marines also fired numerous bursts of automatic rifle fire and engulfed parts of the city in clouds of teargas as they fought through the enraged mob to reach waiting armored cars and roar off. Police said none of the evacuated Communists was seriously injured.

Afterwards, the crowds ransacked the headquarters of the pro-Communist Portuguese Democratic Movement, then returned to the smoking ruins of the Communist party headquarters and set them afire again.

The trouble began Sunday night after a huge but peaceful anti-Communist demonstration. Marchers on their way home passed the Communist headquarters and traded taunts with Communists.

The two sides began throwing rocks at each other and then the Communists fired on the crowds. At least 30 persons were injured in the original fighting and subsequent violence.

Left-wing marines were first called to Braga Sunday. They left the city at dawn Monday but were rushed back at midday after crowds gathered again and set the headquarters ablaze with flaming gasoline bombs, driving the Communists into a garden behind the building.

The violence in Braga broke out as military units met throughout the country to discuss whether to support Portugal's left-wing three-man junta or the moderate officers who have demanded a return to pluralistic democracy.

Portugal's political crisis has been growing rapidly since the nine moderates led by former Foreign Minister Maj. Melo Antunes released their policy document Friday night.

During the weekend, the two-week-old junta ousted the nine from the influential Revolutionary Council. But the military security command said the two dissidents commanding the central and southern military regions would remain in their critical jobs.

Support for the moderates has been widespread in the ranks of the military forces.

Meanwhile, Portugal's "Operation Air Bridge" got into full swing, flying home the first of hundreds of thousands of settlers from embattled Angola more than 4,000 miles from Lisbon in what officials said may be the greatest exodus of whites from Africa in history.

The return of the settlers was bound to add to the economic and political woes of Portugal's shaky leftist military regime, diplomats said, because most of the refugees are anti-Communists embittered by the way the rich West African territory has been handed over to warring blacks.

Portugal's national airline TAP said more than 2,000 refugees are scheduled to arrive on the first day of the expanded airlift.

New Israeli-Syria peace talks seen as possibility

by United Press International

Israel sent two high-level officials to Washington Monday to discuss details of a second Sinai interim peace agreement, prompting speculation an Israeli-Egyptian settlement was near. Israeli newspapers raised the possibility of new peace talks between Israel and Syria.

In Cairo, diplomatic sources said the United States delivered Israel's latest proposals for such a pact to the Egyptian government Monday and a reply is expected within hours.

Israeli officials in Tel Aviv said they expected Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger to resume his Middle East shuttle diplomacy next week to seal the agreement after nearly two months of bargaining.

Two top Israeli negotiators, Mordechai Gazit, outgoing director-general of Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin's office, and Meir Rosen, legal advisor to the foreign ministry, left Tel Aviv for a meeting with Under Secretary of State Joseph Sisco to draft the legal language of a new Sinai pact.

"This trip is within the framework of the effort to achieve an agreement," Gazit told reporters at Ben Gurion Airport. "One should not look at it as a dramatic turning point but as one of the steps in the process of getting an agreement."

Another Israeli delegation left for Washington Sunday to begin discussions on a $3 billion aid package, including $2.5 billion in economic and military aid. In addition, Israel wants $350 million annually in compensation for the return to Egypt of the Abu Rueis oil fields and another $50 million for construction of a new defense line in the Sinai.

The diplomatic sources in Cairo said U.S. Ambassador Hermann F. Eilts delivered the latest Israeli proposals to Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmi.

Federal grand jury probe of Hoffa case ordered

DETROIT (UPI) — U.S. Attorney Ralph Guy Jr. Monday ordered a federal grand jury investigation of the disappearance of former Teamsters Union President James R. Hoffa.

Guy said he will begin issuing subpoenas "later this week" ordering witnesses who have not fully cooperated with investigators to appear before a grand jury already seated in Detroit.

"There is nothing magic about a grand jury," Guy said. "But it does have the contempt charge if a witness refuses to testify."

Later in the day, James P. Hoffa, son of James R. Hoffa, said the FBI has interviewed an individual who claims to have witnessed his father's abduction.

Hoffa told newsmen at the family's Lake Orion home. "He's an interesting witness. He has given us substantial leads which have been followed up carefully."

An FBI spokesman, commenting on Hoffa's report, said, "We have no knowledge of a witness to the abduction of Mr. Hoffa."

Guy made the announcement after FBI agents eliminated their most promising lead to date in the 12-day-old investigation — a blood-stained car belonging to the son of a reputed mafia figure Hoffa set out to meet the day he disappeared.

An FBI analysis of the stains disclosed they were not human blood but blood which apparently leaked from a frozen fish carried in the car by Hoffa's self-styled foster son, Charles "Chuckie" O'Brien.

O'Brien previously told the FBI he borrowed the car on July 30 from Joseph Giacalone, son of Anthony "Tony Jack" Giacalone, to deliver a 16-pound salmon to the wife of a Detroit Teamsters officials and that blood had leaked from the package.

O'Brien, believed by Hoffa's family to be closely connected to the apparent abduction, told investigators it was "a hell of a coincidence" that his movements that morning brought him very near the Machus Red Fox Restaurant where his foster father was last seen.

The Chicago Sun-Times, quoting a source close to the family, said Monday the Hoffas now believe the fallen labor leader was abducted and slain by gangster friends who turned on him.

"Hoffa's death, the source said, became necessary because his vast knowledge of crooked deals might get to law enforcement officials who for several years have been conducting an investigation of Teamster pension funds in several large cities," the newspaper reported.

It said the family is convinced Hoffa set out to meet Giacalone; Anthony "Tony Pro" Provenzano, a former Teamsters official with alleged ties to the New Jersey underworld; and Leonard Schultz, a Detroit labor consultant.

All three denied the meeting was ever arranged and have established alibis. They were expected to be subpoenaed to appear before the grand jury.

Sources close to the investigation suspect the abduction is linked to Hoffa's efforts to recapture control of the 2.2 million-member Teamsters Union or to a mafia plot to seize the union's East Coast operations.

Hoffa once was quoted as saying Provenzano "threatened to pull my guts out or kidnap my grandchildren if I continued to attempt to return to the presidency of the Teamsters."

Ford signs pay raise bill for high-level officials

VAIL, Colo. (UPI) — Pay increases for Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, members of Congress, the Cabinet, the Supreme Court and other high-level government officials were signed into law Monday by President Ford.

The bill gives the government's top level officers, whose pay has been frozen since 1969, the same percentage increases approved for civil service employes.

The amount of the increases is still to be settled. The Bureau of Labor Standards told Ford it would take an 8.6 per cent increase to provide civil service employes with salaries comparable to the private sector. The estimated cost is $52 million. Ford can approve the 8.6 per cent increase by taking no action. It then would go into effect Oct. 1.

However, the President is expected to recommend a smaller increase — probably 5 per cent — and submit it to Congress. If either the Senate or House rejects the smaller raise, the 8.6 per cent increase goes into effect Oct. 1.

As vice president, Rockefeller now receives an annual $62,500 taxable salary.

Smokey the Bear hit by high costs

• Even Smokey the Bear has been hit by the high cost of housing. The Forest Service had planned to move Old Smokey and his mate, Goldie, from National Zoo in Washington to a special retirement "bear grotto" to be built at Ghost Ranch Museum in the Carson National Forest in New Mexico, but the bids were too high. Manson, 'family' seek new trial

Charles Manson and three women members of his "family," convicted of the bloody Tate-LaBianca murders, appealed Monday for a new trial, citing a Supreme Court decision giving defendants the right to act as their own lawyers. The petition was filed with the state Court of Appeals on behalf of Manson, Patricia Krenwinkle, Susan Atkins and Leslie van Houten. Manson and the women were convicted in 1971 and sentenced to die in the gas chamber, but the sentence was commuted to life in prison when the death penalty was abolished.

U.S. bars Vietnam from U.N.

The United States Monday cast two vetoes in the U.N. Security Conference to bar South and North Vietnam from the United Nations. The two votes were 13-1 in favor of admission, with the U.S. vetoes sufficient to kill the resolution. Costa Rica abstained from both ballots. President Ford said last week the United States would agree to full U.N. membership for the two Vietnams only if South Korea was admitted simultaneously.

Cuba returning hijack ransom

Cuba has returned nearly $2 million ransom paid to three hijackers of a southern Airways flight in 1972, Chairman John Sparkman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee announced Monday. Sparkman, at a news conference, urged the administration to respond with "a staged removal" of the U.S. embargo against Cuba, including elimination of all restrictions on trade in food and medicine.

Northwest Airlines sees 100% operation

Northwest Airlines Monday said it had restored 90 to 95 per cent of its service following a three-day pilots' strike last week. The airline, the nation's seventh largest carrier, expected to be back in full operation by this morning, Roy Erickson, vice president for public relations, said.

Powell, Kissinger address ABA

Supreme Court Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr. said Monday narrow 5 to 4 rulings and strongly worded dissents are a sign of strength at the high court. Powell told a meeting of the American Bar Association in Montreal that differences of opinion, "indeed the strong differences evidenced by our dissents," are both inevitable and "reflect a strength — not a weakness — of the court."

Court critics have sometimes charged that 5 to 4 splits on the court in major decisions are a signal that the court is so divided it should not rule on novel issues.

U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissenger also addressed the ABA He said the world's coastal nations should have 200-mile offshore economic zones for mineral exploration and fishing. "In an age of awesome weapons of war, there must be accommodation or there will be disaster."

Britain vows to meet Ireland violence

Britain's security chiefs in Northern Ireland warned Monday they would meet future violence — like the weekend rioting that claimed three lives — with force. Burned-out cars and buses littered Roman Catholic areas in Belfast where most of the fighting and all three deaths occurred. "The level of activity of the security forces always will be and in all cases is related to the level of violence," Minister of State Stanley Orme and British army and police chiefs said in a statement.

Court to challenge Indira's efforts

The Indian supreme court set the stage Monday for a challenge to Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's efforts to put herself and her office above the law. Overruling Mrs. Gandhi's lawyers in a 50-minute session, the five-man court agreed to hear a challenge to a new constitutional amendment nullifying the prime minister's two convictions for corrupt campaign practices.

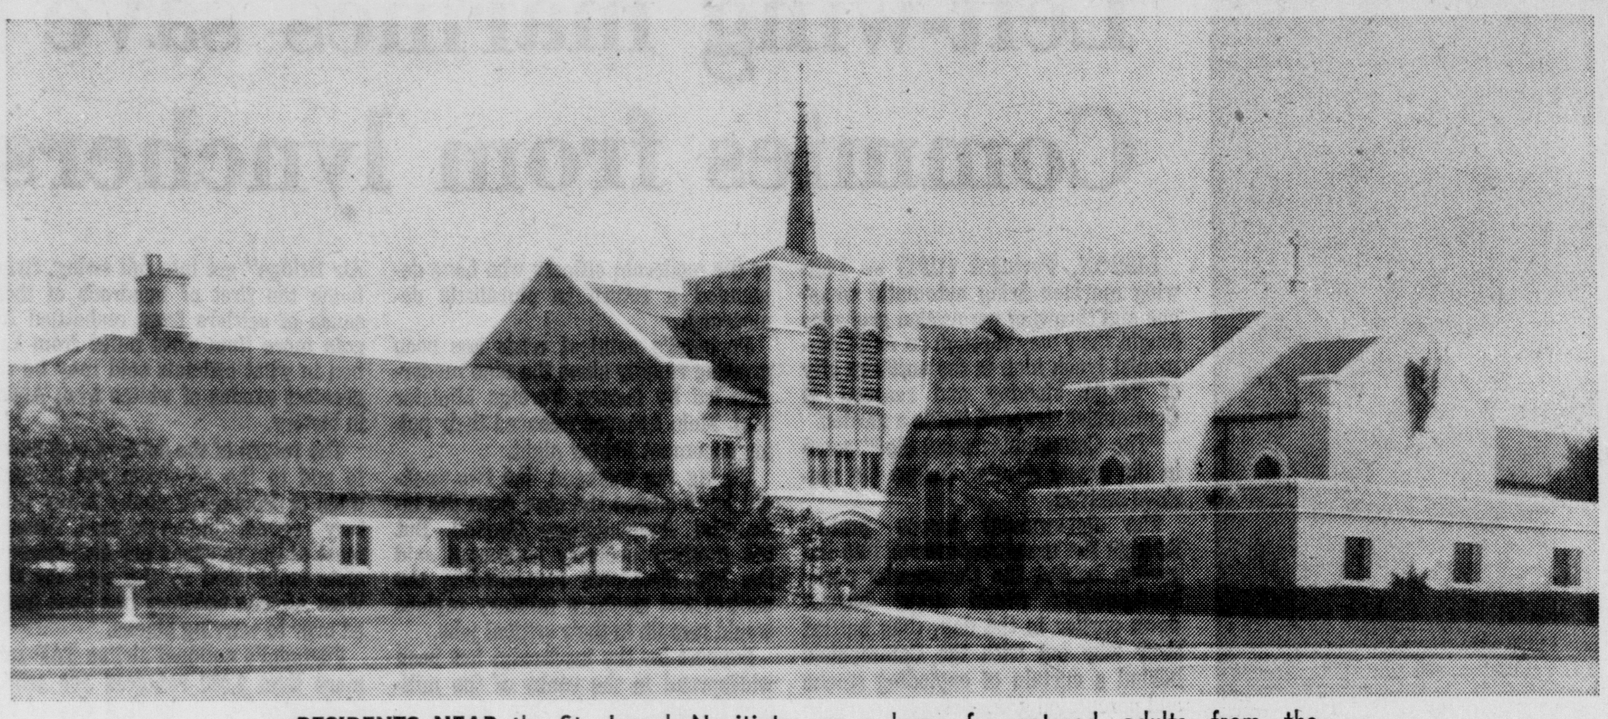
Opponents campaign against home for retarded



RESIDENTS NEAR the St. Joseph Novitiate in McHenry County protest its possible use as a home for retared adults from the Northwest suburbs.

A group of McHenry County residents has waged a week-long countywide campaign to convince county board members to vote today against a proposed home for retarded adults from the Northwest suburbs.

The home, near Woodstock, has been proposed by Suburban Townships Assn. for the Retarded (STAR) to house severely retarded adults at least 18 years old from Elk Grove, Wheeling, Schaumburg and Palatine townships and McHenry County.

STAR wants to buy the $1.3 million, 86-acre St. Joseph Novitiate and has requested a zoning change to convert it into such a home.

It takes a majority of the 24-member county board to approve the change. The county zoning board has endorsed the plan.

"WE ARE JUST trying to present the facts the way they are," said Nancy Howard, a McHenry County real estate broker involved in the protest.

"We do not believe STAR has proved its case. We wonder why they have gone through zoning in McHenry County when they could purchase land in Cook County and build a new facility certainly in better shape than the novitiate."

Ms. Howard said property owners near the novitiate have passed out literature opposing the home and are urging taxpayers to write to the county board and object. The group has also filed a formal objection with the county board.

The literature states the home would "substantially" lower property values and that there is no guarantee McHenry County residents would not be taxed if STAR could not pay its bills. STAR plans to get money to buy the facility from the Illinois Health Facilities Authority and residents are afraid state would take over the property if STAR's project failed.

STAR officials have charged that residents are opposed to the project because it is for the retarded.

"I DON'T THINK that is it specifically," said Ms. Howard. "They don't need 86 acres of land for the home and it seems it will be understaffed."

Martin Pratt, STAR president, said not all residents near the property have objected to theproject. He pointed out that one property owner near the novitiate sponsored a horse show for STAR and raised nearly $1,500.

Both Pratt and Ms. Howard said it was impossible to tell how the county board will vote on the issue. Ms. Howard said she believes property owners have changed the minds of many people in the area and convinced them to write letters opposing the facility.

New state special education rules

Parents of handicapped get more rights

by WANDALYN RICE

Parents with handicapped children will have expanded rights to challenge school district actions affecting their children under proposed new state rules on special education.

The rules, required by a new federal law, will allow parents the right to a hearing by an independent hearing officer if they object to the plans made by school officials for their child.

The rules also will require school districts to get specific permission for any diagnostic testing on children who are suspected of being handicapped and will allow the parent to have an outside agency test the child at public expense.

The new rules will probably take effect in December, said Gail Leiberman, a member of the state Office of Education staff. The proposed rules are under study by the state's special education advisory committee, which will meet in Springfield Aug. 21 to discuss the provisions.

UNDER THE PRESENT rules on special education issued by the state, parents may appeal recommendations made by school officials for their children, but the appeals are heard by school officials, not by independent hearing officers.

In addition, the rules will tighten requirements that school districts notify parents of proposed programs for their children and get written permission for any diagnostic testing that may be done. The notice to parents will have to specifically say that the parent has the right to refuse the testing and also has the right to get an independent evaluation of the child at public expense.

If the parents refuse to allow a child to be tested, the school district will be able to ask a hearing officer to order the test, but, according to the proposed rules, "The burden of proof is on the school district which must demonstrate that the continued placement of the child is so dangerous to his or her health or safety or so disruptive to the program for the other children that the initiation of the evaluation procedure is justified."

Ms. Leiberman said that before the new rules go into effect the state will find and train hearing officers and make lists of their names available to school districts.

"That will mean we'll have the staff trained before the rules go into effect instead of waiting and training them after the rules take effect," she said.

NORTHWEST SUBURBAN school officials were generally unaware of the proposed change, but several said they have had little problem with parents objecting to special education placements under the present rules.

"We sometimes spend a long time working with the parents," A. Todd Fouty, director of pupil personnel for Arlington Heights Dist. 25, said. "We have spent as long as two years before making a placement. We always figure that unless we have the parents' agreement it wouldn't do much good for the child anyway."

Fouty and Lorita Langley, director of pupil personnel service in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15, said they are concerned about the costs of hearing officers and of the independent evaluations parents will be allowed to require.

Fouty said parents in Dist. 25 sometimes go to outside specialists to have their children tested, but those tests are at the parents expense. Paying for the outside evaluations "will be the big change," he said.

Mrs. Langley said Dist. 15 has also had few cases in which parents objected to putting their children in special education programs. "We have many more parents who seek evaluations for their children," she said. "We see far more parents who are eager to have something done."

Mrs. Langley said she does not know what effect the new rules will have on the districts. "I would like to know a little more about who the hearing officers are going to be and where the money is going to come from," she said. "There are a lot of unanswered questions right now."

State told: simplify lottery; 11% prizes unclaimed

The Illinois Lottery Control Board recommended Monday that the state's lottery games be simplified.

The board, issuing its first annual report, said 11 per cent of all lottery winners failed to claim prizes during the game's first 39 weeks of operation —possibly through failure to understand that they have won.

It recommended that the lottery division of the Illinois Revenue Dept. make more extensive efforts to publicize past winning numbers.

"The board also recommends that the division simplify the basic 50-cent game as soon as practicable, and that the division give careful consideration to simplifying all subsequent games which may run in conjunction with or as a substitute for the basic 50-cent game," the report said.

The board also said the General Assembly should change laws governing the lottery so unclaimed prize monies will be divided between the state general revenue fund and the prize pool.

Fair draws 301,000

The Illinois State Fair attracted 301,000 visitors during its first three days, an increase of 32,000 over attendance for the same period last year.

Fair officials attributed the increase to weather — warm and sunny this year, and rainy last year — when attendance the first weekend was 269,000.

The fair this year, however, is 19,000 behind the unofficial predictions the fair's public relations office made. If the slip continued, the fair may close its 10-day run 50,000 persons off the original estimate.

Ozone warnings issued

Ozone warnings for Chicago, Joliet and East St. Louis were ordered by the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency on Monday.

Warnings were issued at noon for Chicago, with a reading of .091 parts per million; Joliet, .090 ppm and East St. Louis, .084 ppm.

The EPA issues the warnings whenever the amount of ozone in the air stays at a level of .07 or more for two hours. The presence of large amounts of ozone in an area causes respiratory problems.

Handicapped kids adopted

The Daniel Faretta family of Darien, Wis., formally adopted four handicapped Illinois children Monday, giving the Farettas a total of nine adoptive youngsters.

The four children have lived with the family for several years under Illinois' foster parent program. But the Farettas were not able to adopt them because the family didn't qualify financially.

Recently, however, the Illinois Dept. of Chiildren and Family Services informed the Farettas that they were eligible for a state adoption subsidy, allowing them to continue to receive the aid provided for them as foster parents.

Monkey import ban set; pet store owners protest

A federal ban on imports of monkeys and other primates was announced Monday by the Welfare Center for Disease Control of the U.S. Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare.

Sandra Hoffman, co-owner of the Animal Kingdom pet store in Des Plaines, said pet dealers will oppose the measure.

The ban takes effect in 60 days. Initial regulations were proposed in March. The federal agency said such animals are a significant source of infectious diseases for people who come in contact with the creatures. Diseases spread by the animals include hepatitis, tuberculosis and parasitic infections.

MRS. HOFFMAN said chimpanzees and other primates share some of the same illnesses as humans but there is minimal danger of infection.

"I personally lived with a chimpanzee," Mrs. Hoffman said. "I had contact for seven years. I've never been sick and I don't know of anybody in our industry who's been ill," she said of the potential problem.

The new regulations do not prohibit the importation of primates for research, education and exhibition purposes. The regulations strengthen disease surveillance and control procedures while setting up a post-importation surveillance program.

About 100,000 primates are imported each year and half are sold as pets. In addition to monkeys, primates includes chimpanzees, gorillas, orangutans, gibbons, apes, baboons, marmosets, tree shrews and other animals.

SPIRITUAL RETREAT in the Northwest suburbs is tucked away just off Rand Road near Arlington Heights. For two years James and Christina White have been making their home and land available to many divergent groups looking for retreat sites within easy reach of the city.

Weekend retreat

Couple throws doors open to individuals, groups seeking a two-day respite from hassles, pressures of daily life

by JOE SWICKARD

For many people, their home is a refuge, a retreat from the hassles of work and the pressures of the world at large.

For James and Christina White their home and land is a retreat for others as well.

The Whites, of 1703 E. Olive St. in Wheeling Township, have opened their house and grounds to individuals and groups seeking a weekend respite. People ranging from Buddhists and psychological groups to Christians and health food enthusiasts have found a place in the country less than an hour from the city.

"The only reason we are here is to grow in spirit," James, 30, said of his personal philosophy; but it could as easily apply to the home as well.

THE HOUSE, a restored 11-room farmhouse, is on three acres hidden from neaby Rand Road by trees, hedges and an expanding garden. Walking the wide lawn shaded by old trees, it is easy to ignore the traffic and booming suburbs.

The Whites, whose personal beliefs run to a spiritual Christianity and natural foods and healing, said the offering of their home to others is a logical extension of their interest in "looking into all forms of religion and philosophy."

"We have a chapel (a renovated garage) and a lot of room. People we know in spiritual and psychological circles asked us if they could use it. It has worked out naturally. It's better than going to a hotel," Christina said.

Most groups using the Whites' home for a weekend retreat are small. However, larger groups have used the house for lectures or one-day sessions.

"We sit down and talk with the people to see what they are like and what their plans are. Some people we aren't interested in having here. We're not going to let a nudist club come in, for example. We're not interested in creating a scene. We're pretty low-key for the neighbor," Christina said.

THE WHITES have maintained a low profile in the area. Most neighbors are unaware of the visitors, although a recent wedding attracted some attention because of the white robed participants.

"Although we share, we don't push our ideas on people. We're not interested in pressuring them," James said.

They do insist, however, on some ground rules such as a ban on liquor and drugs. They also segregate the men's and women's sleeping accommodations.

While the Whites favor natural organic foods for themselves they do not object if the weekend guests take advantage of local restaurants.

"We don't interfere with what they eat. We've already gone through the fanatic stage," they said with a laugh.

THEIR OPERATION is funded through donations of the user-groups and Christina's earnings from lectures and classes on natural foods and health. James also works as an electronics specialist.

The cost to the groups using the Whites' place is worked out on an ability-to-pay basis with a base to cover the costs. Word of the retreat has been spread by word of mouth among their acquaintances and past users.

They plan to continue the retreat operation at their home. They also have been thinking about possible expansion.

"We'd like to get some land for something on a bigger scale. It probably would have to be in Wisconsin because land is just too expensive around here," James said.

A larger facility could be used for more people for longer periods than just a weekend. With more acreage, they said, it could be used as a vacation site by those wanting a spiritual retreat but without structural ties to another organization.

"We are not trying to plug any one thing," they said. "The problem is that people can get locked in. 'we're trying to open it up."

Parks to annex 50 houses today

The Arlington Heights Park Board is expected to annex about 50 Wheeling Township houses tonight at a meeting at 7:30 p.m. at Olympic Park, 660 N. Ridge St.

All of the township area between Rand Road and Thomas Street, west of Waterman Street, will be annexed under a state statute that allows involuntary annexation of less than 60 acres of land bounded on three sides by park district property and on a fourth side by a body of water, a highway or a railroad.

The park board tonight will not annex homes in an area between Rand Road and Palatine Road, east of Clarence Avenue, said Thomas Thornton, park district director.

Seven of those homes, located on Center Lane, have been annexed into the nearby Prospect Heights Park District within the last week to avoid being included in the Arlington Heights Park District. Other area residents also may petition the Prospect Heights Park District for annexation, he said.

THE PARK DISTRICT has annexed about 300 unincorporated area houses during the last six months under the new statute, and it plans to annex other areas along Rand Road. All of the newly annexed areas are expected to contribute about $10 million in assessed valuation to the district.

About 50 residents of the Lynnwood subdivision, southeast of Palatine Road and Ill. Rt. 53, are challenging the park district's use of the statute in court. The subdivision has been annexed to the park district piecemeal within the last six months.

Park district officials have justified the annexations by saying it is helping to round out the district's boundaries and to make them the same as Arlington Heights village boundaries.

The park board also is expected to award contracts for the construction of a maintenance and equipment storage garage at Frontier Park, 1933 N. Kennicott Dr.

The garage was included in a $537,000 general obligation bonds issue approved by voters in a March referendum.

Robber gets $200 at Open Pantry

A barefoot youth wearing an earring fled with about $200 late Monday after an armed robbery at the Open Pantry, 1035 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights.

Police said the robber ran into the store about 10:20 p.m., displayed a knife and demanded the money from two female clerks. After taking the cash, he fled on foot.

Union considers new Centel offer

by JOE FRANZ

Central Telephone Co. officials and striking union employes resumed negotiations Monday, but the talks were soon recessed to allow the union time to consider the company's latest salary proposals.

Martin Brown, spokesman for the company, said negotiators from both sides are slated to meet again today at 2:30 p.m. in the O'Hare Hilton Hotel.

Brown would not divulge details of the company's latest offer in the strike talks. Brown said officials want the union to have time to consider the proposal before it is made public.

Thomas L. Beagley, president and business manager of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Local 336, also refused to comment. The strike is moving into its seventh week.

"WERE TAKING a look at it now and will have a statement sometime tomorrow (Tuesday) afternoon," Beagley said.

The union employes went on strike July 1 after the two sides failed to reach agreement on a new contract. About 350 management employes, many from out of state, are filling in for the employes during the strike.

Negotiations between the company and union have been stalled because of disagreement over several proposed changes in work rules and company policies. Some 30 issues, however, including pay raises and fringe benefits remain unresolved.

Since the strike began there have been numerous acts of vandalism to telephone company property and a number of scuffles between strikers and non-union employes at picket lines.

CENTRAL Telephone Co. has offered a $1,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of anyone damaging company property. Union officials have denied the union is responsible for the vandalism.

Circuit Court Judge Samuel Epstein last week signed a court order limiting the number of pickets at Central Telephone Co. facilities and called on both sides to keep the peace.

Central Telephone Co. serves about 70,000 customers in Des Plaines, Park Ridge, Mount Prospect, Prospect Heights, Rosemont, Niles and Chicago.

French restaurant to be reconstructed

Le Francais Restaurant, 269 S. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling, will be rebuilt.

Demolition of the old building was completed Monday and work on the new building will start as soon as possible.

The restaurant, located in what officials termed a "a local landmark," was more than 50 per cent destroyed by fire July 18. Fire officials said an electrical short caused the fire.

Walter Repholtz, Wheeling Building Director, said the restaurant owners, Jean and Doris Banchet, are trying to buy more adjacent land. The old building did not meet setback or parking requirements but was permitted as a non-conforming use. The new restaurant will be required to meet all village codes.

over for dinner. But, I can't let this go without giving him some recognition," Smith said.

Smith underwent open heart surgery a year ago. Doctors warned him a blood clot could form at any time. It developed while he was driving home from work.

"I tried to flag someone down for about 40 minutes, and finally Tony stopped. I can't blame people for not stopping, because you never know what you're getting into when you do. But, it would have meant my life if he didn't stop to help," Smith said.

Ruble is a cabinetmaker for Exhibit Group, Chicago, Elk Grove Village. He regularly stops to assist troubled motorists on his way home, he said.

"I don't mind helping people when they have a flat tire or are out of gas, because I figure someone can do the same for me someday. But, I never expected to find someone in an emergency situation when I stopped to help Mr. Smith that day," Ruble said.

'I was really shook after I finally got him to the hospital. I was sitting in the waiting room and realized I was really hoping that this man, whose name I didn't even know, would make it," he said.

"Now we're friends. It goes to show we spend too much of our lives in little boxes, afraid to give a little of ourselves to others," he said.

30 Playboys stolen from front of store

Thieves took 30 issues of Playboy magazine Monday morning from in front of an Arlington Heights drug store, police said.

The magazines had been dropped off at the Northgate Pharmacy, 903 W. Rand Rd.

Police also are investigating the theft of a wallet and a radio from a crossing guard Sunday at Palatine Road and Kennicott Avenue. John Waddick of Arlington Heights told police someone took his paper bag containing the wallet, $5 in cash and a radio.

Haline Huck cares

She's always there with a helping hand

She started at age 13 as an operating room assistant to her hometown doctor in Iowa. Now, 51 years later, Haline Huck, Des Plaines, is still actively involved with caring for — and loving — people who need help.

"My doctor used to say that experience is worth a million," commented Mrs. Huck, a practical nurse who worked in a mental sanitarium and at private duty before her career with elderly people at the Des Plaines and Graceland Homes in Des Plaines. "And it's unbelievable the things that happen," she said.

For example, she has been called out in the middle of the night to stop fights, to make up beds for emergency cases or just to talk.

She has worked with patients who refuse to eat. Some, she said, could pack a punch better than a heavyweight boxer.

"AND I'VE BEEN called everything under the sun, too," she laughed.

Mrs. Huck especially enjoys working with the mentally ill and convalescents. Along with being on 24-hour call at both nursing homes, she acts as a type of watchdog for retarded or mentally ill outpatients who live in houses owned by the Homes.

That program is referred to as "sheltered care," said Mrs. Huck. It is for people who can take care of themselves if they have a little guidance.

Originally Mrs. Huck hand't planned on becoming so involved in her career. In fact, after her husband, George, came home from World War II, she said she wasn't going back to work.

BUT THE LATE Dr. R. Sorenson, who first opened the Des Plaines Home and later Graceland had a different idea.

He asked her to help out for just a couple of days, said Mrs. Huck, her eyes twinkling. The only one left of the original staff, her 25-year anniversary with the Des Plaines Home was celebrated July 5.

"I guess my two or three days have lasted the rest of my life," she chuckled.

A small, trim woman, Mrs. Huck has worked in nearly every phase of activity at the Homes — not just in nursing.

SHE WAS occupational therapist for nine years at Graceland, and is still a member of the Craft and Recreational Aide Association of the Senior Centers of Metropolitan Chicago.

She has worked in the kitchens preparing meals, does most of the mending for patients, plants the flowers in front of the Homes, and even sews most of the curtains there. Two nights a week she is a doctor's receptionist.

At Christmas, decked out in white boots, a red dress and stocking hat, she always delivers presents to all of th e patients.

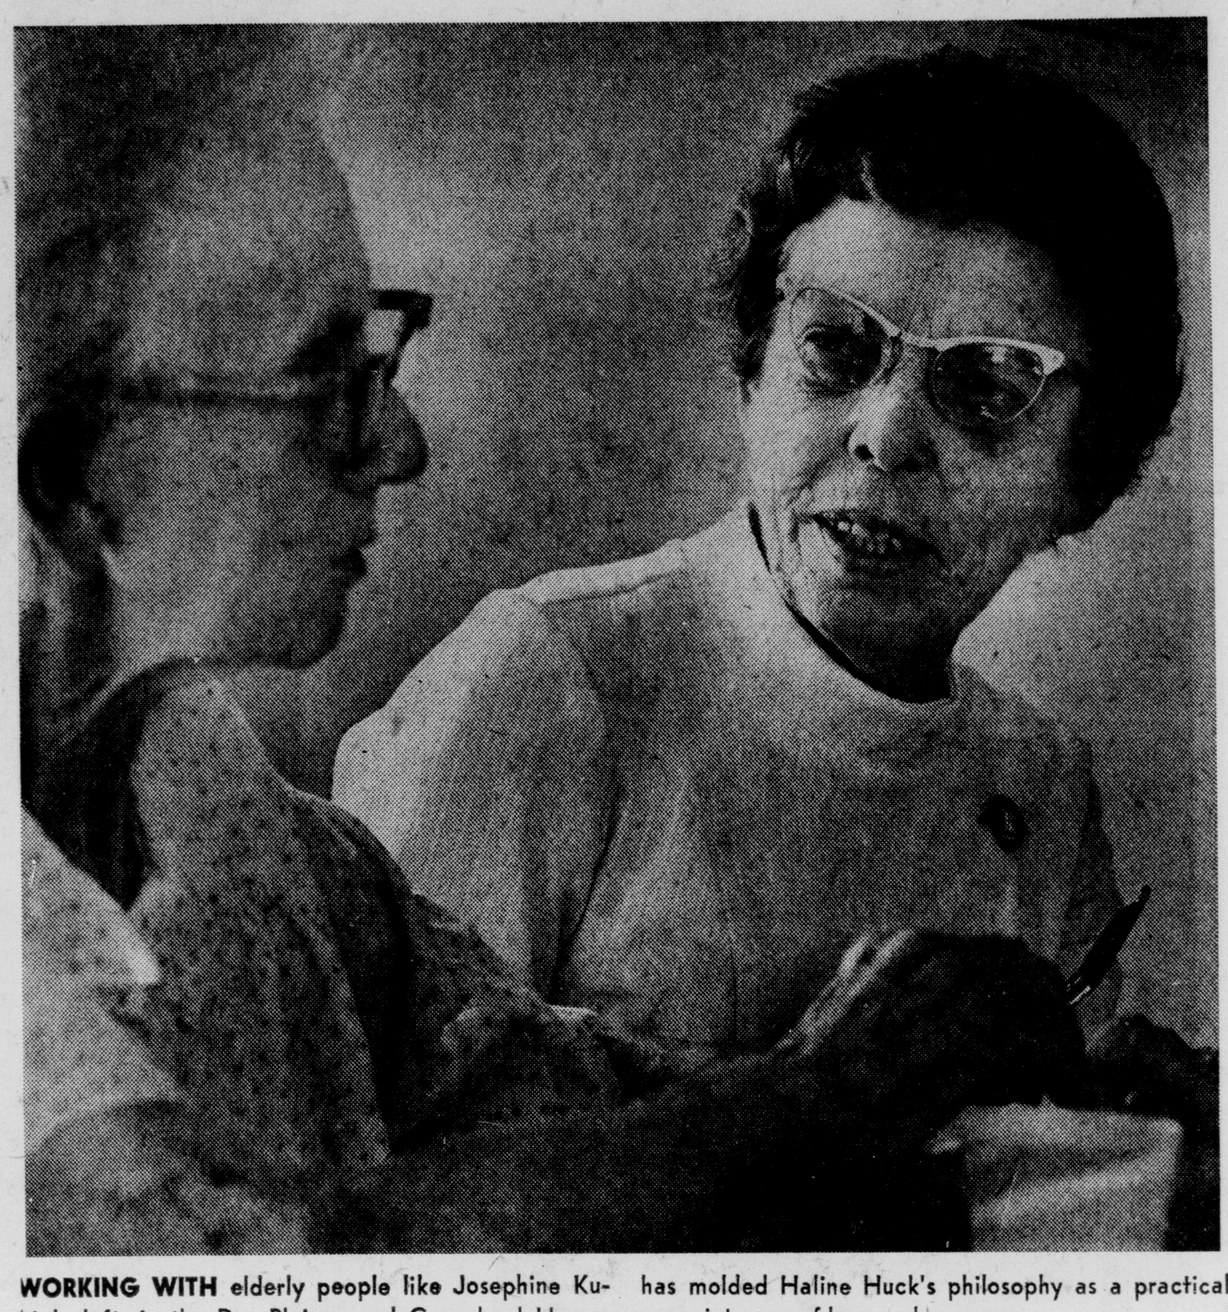
Much of her versatility she attributes to her outside activities. Recently honored as a 50-year member of her Williamsburg, Iowa, 4-H Club, she also belongs to the Des Plaines Homemakers Unit (A type of adult 4-H group, she explained).

NOW AN ENTHUSIASTIC seamstress and knitter, she claims she never would have learned without belonging to those organizations.

However, that wasn't the case with her nursing.

In the mid-'60s, it became mandatory to certify nurses with state examinations. Although Mrs. Huck has never graduated from a school nursing program, her years of experience allowed her to easily pass the tests in 1966 to earn her Licensed Practical Nurse certificate.

"We could not afford for me to finish my education," she explained. "But you don't need a master's degree to love people."



WORKING WITH elderly people like Josephine Kubiak, left, in the Des Plaines and Graceland Homes has molded Haline Huck's philosophy as a practical nurse into one of love and concern.

There is a trick to picking cantaloupe

The homeline
by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: I've hesitated to ask this out loud because it makes me sound out of it, but what's the trick to picking cantaloupes? Can't remember picking a decent one yet, and when I've asked the people at the stores, all I ever got were duds. Help!—Joe Meldrin.

First, the melon should feel firm but not hard as rock. Second, the skin should have a yellowish tinge. If it's too yellow, pass it up — it's overripe. Third, the stem end ought to exude a pleasant odor. Little bruises don't matter; the big bruises tell you to steer clear. Buy a firm cantaloupe and let it sit for a day or two, then the odor will tell you it's time to refrigerate. a few trial-and-error runs along this line ought to give you some expertise and confidence.

Dear Dorothy: This might be the answer for the reader who asked how to keep the rabbits out of his broccoli patch. Planting a row of marigolds is the best way to keep rabbits out of a garden. — Greg Blatt.

It's worth a try. Certain odors do repel animals, and this one has the ring of an old wives' tale — and all these have an attraction for me. I think they're usually based on years of sound experience.

Dear Dorothy: I've often washed out the hydrator pan in our 4-year-old refrigerator but not underneath because I wasn't strong enough to pull the whole thing out. Finally asked my husband to take out the bottom shelf and drawer. While there was no odor, there was enough glop collected to make me shudder. Soaked most of it off and then made a paste of the enzyme-active laundry product with water and covered the cracks on the three sides. Let it stay 30 minutes. Residue wiped up easily, and I used a paper towel wrapped around a screwdriver to clean out the cracks.Joy Macklin

Ozarks may be best kept secret in United States

Travel lore

by Clare Wright
TRAVEL EDITOR

LAKE OZARK, Mo. — Down here in the heart of Missouri is one of America's finest resort areas.

The Lake of the Ozarks is a year-round, one-stop vacation center with unlimited fun possibilities for all ages — and accommodations ranging from elegant luxury to economical resorts.

There are more than 300 resorts, motels, lodges and camp grounds spread over 1,376 miles of shoreline. Five are luxury establishments — as posh as anything you will find anywhere in the country.

Besides these elegant hideaways there are more than 40 major resorts and more than 200 smaller family resorts, motels and marinas on the lake.

NINE LARGE campgrounds are available with modern facilities.

Within this area there is every thing for the vacationing family searching for fun — swimming, boating, fishing, sailing, golf, tennis, horseback riding, nature trails — or just plain relaxing.

Nearly three million visitors vacationed here last year. The area is so large, however, it never appears overly crowded even at the very peak of the busy summer season.

Missouri tourism officials feel the "big push" is yet to come in this near perfect vacation paradise.

The fact is that this vast, magnificent Missouri vacationland has not yet been completely discovered by the rest of the country.

"We're the best-kept secret in the country," one resort manager told us on a recent visit. He predicts the area may one day become one of America's major vacation destinations.

SNUGLY NESTLED in lush, rolling Ozark hills, the 129-mile-long, dragon-shaped lake is the result of nature's bounty and man's ingenuity.

Until the 1930s the enormous Lake of the Ozarks vacationaland was just typical Missouri farmland, with scores of small creeks and streams that drained into the Osage River every time it rained.

In 1931, Union Electric of St. Louis needed hydro-electric power and set about to construct Gabnell Dam. They really only needed 61,000 acres for the power plant project. Farmers in the area, however, insisted on selling their complete farms — not just the best parts.

As a result, Union Electric ended up with 165,000 acres, most of which later became Missouri's largest state park. Other acreage was purchased by far-sighted land developers.

For several decades only a few scattered fishing resorts dotted the vast, many-fingered lake. Good fishermen heard about it and came from far and wide.

THE THE BIG boom began in the '50's and '60s. The great recreational potential of the lake was being discovered and resorts began popping up all along the shore.

One of the first big luxury resorts was Tan-Tar-A, designed and built in 1960 by Burton Duenke, a St. Louis builder, who had vacationed in the Lake of the Ozarks and was impressed enough to want to create one of the most unusual resorts in the country.

Three years later Harold Koplar of the St. Louis Chase Park Plaza built the elegant, family oriented Lodge of the Four Seasons, which just recently added the new Robert Trent Jones 18-hole championship golf course.

What can you do at the Lake of the Ozarks in addition to what we have already mentioned? Here's more:

Ozark Water Ski Thrill Show — one of the few professional shows of its kind in the world. Several world champions have trained here. During the season there are two shows every day.

- Enjoy country and western music with Ozark Opry stars and hillbilly comics.
- Gagnell Dam power plant tours. These are free and conducted every day.
- Seaplane and helicopter rides at Link's Landing.
- Gold Nugget Junction, where a single admission buys a whole day of fun in a frontier ghost town.
- The Missouri Aquarium where you can hand-feed the fish.
- Antique auto and music box museum.
- Six commercial caves to explore — all with fascinating rock formations. One is Bridal Cave where more than 600 weddings have been performed.
- Excursion boat rides, including moonlight dance cruises.
- Train-stage coach rides.
- Amusement parks.
- Rodeos.
- Square dancing.
- Shopping. There are all kinds of gift shops featuring Ozark souvenirs and cedarcraft. (Try the Cedar Barn for great factory "seconds" at unbelievably low cost.)

The Lake of the Ozarks is a little over 450 miles from the Northwest suburbs. You can take I-55 to the St. Louis area, switch to Int. I-270 to connect with I-70. Take I-70 west until it crosses U.S. Rte. 54, where you drive south through Jefferson City and to the lake area.

LAKE OF THE Ozarks offers unlimited fun possibilities for all ages from water sports to Ozark Opry country music. Accommodations range from economical resorts and campsites to elegant spots like the Lodge of the Four Seasons Spa and Golf Resort pictured in the background.

You can also fly from O'Hare to the jetport at the Lake of the Ozarks State Park.

This writer spent last weekend in Acapulco, looking at the newest hotels and the latest in redecorating of the well-known hotels of the area. The weather was beautiful, the flea market was great (if you bargained as expected), and the food was excellent. We stayed at the Hyatt Regency, a beautiful hotel, and had lunch on Saturday at the Continental, formerly the Hilton.

Today is Tuesday, Aug. 12, the 224th day of 1975 with 141 to follow.

The moon is approaching its first quarter.

On this day in history:

• In 1658, a so-called "rattle watch" of eight men was formed in the colony of New Amsterdam — the first police force in America.

• In 1851, Isaac Singer was granted a patent for his sewing machine. Singer set up business in Boston with a capital of $40.

• In 1959, as crowds jeered, public school integration was carried out in Little Rock, Ark. Six black students were enrolled in the city's senior high schools.

• In 1972, U.S. bombers hit Communist targets in both North and South Vietnam in the heaviest raids of the war.

County should buy course

Cook County government has a responsibility to help protect remaining open land in congested areas, but last week it missed an opportunity to exercise that duty in the Northwest suburbs.

An advisory committee of the Forest Preserve District recommended against the purchase of the $10 million, 200-acre Rob Roy Golf Course on Euclid Avenue near Mount Prospect. We believe that committee should reverse its recommendation.

Forest Preserve Supt. Arthur Janura defended the decision on the grounds that it's cheaper to buy open land than to buy an existing course.

He also reasoned that the purchase would include a bar and restaurant "we don't need." Finally, he argued that a Forest Preserve golf course nine miles away in Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg makes another nearby course unnecessary.

However, these arguments fall when the existing value of Rob Roy is considered. The property, which has been under consideration for apartment development for several years, is a recreation planner's dream: a ready-made, 27-hole golf course which could eventually become a park-like mecca for golfers and non-golfers alike.

If the county bought the land, it would be a simple matter for the Forest Preserve to lease the restaurant and bar to a private entrepreneur. To answer Janura's other argument, there are several public golf courses near each other in the Chicago area.

Several attempts have been made by local governments to purchase the land, but it costs too much money. The county, with much larger financial resources, is the logical agency to purchase the property.

There's a special urgency for the county to act, for if Kenroy, the developer of the property, gains county zoning and builds on the property, the land will be lost forever as an important large-scale recreation asset.

The lighter side

Old or new, it costs too much

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON — To understand the fight between President Ford and Congress over oil price controls, one must understand the difference between "old" oil and "new" oil.

The best way to get that distinction across is via the question-and-answer format.

Q. Okay, wise guy, what IS the difference between old oil and new oil?

A. A good question. Old oil is cheaper.

Q. Glad to hear it. Where can I buy some?

A. You can't buy it. Try buying a quart of old oil and chances are you will be sold a quart of used oil. Which is something else entirely.

Q. Why can't I buy old oil?

A. Somewhere along the line — I'm not sure where this happens — the old oil gets mixed in with the new oil. So what you get is middle-aged oil.

GERALD FORD

Q. If new oil costs more than old oil, does that mean it is better?

A. Not necessarily. The price depends on when the oil was discovered. Old oil, or oil that was discovered before a certain date, is subject to price control. On oil discovered after that date, the sky's the limit.

This is why oilmen are so fond of new oil.

In fact, the oilmen are sorry now they ever discovered all that old oil in the first place. If they didn't already know it was there, they could come along and rediscover it at a higher price.

Q. Is there any way of converting old oil to new oil?

A. Yes. If price controls expire at the end of the month, the old oil will magically turn into new oil overnight.

Q. Why did Congress vote to extend price controls for six months?

A. Congress says that with nothing but new oil available the price will go even higher and start a new round of inflation?

Q. Does that mean that President Ford, who plans to veto the bill, is in favor of inflation?

A. No. Ford claims that changing old oil to new oil will give oilmen more incentive to drill for new-new oil, which is oil that is so new it hasn't been discovered yet. If enough non-discovered oil is found, prices will come down.

Q. What if the non-discovered oil turns out to be non-existent?

A. In that event, the higher price will discourage poorer consumers from bulying oil, thus saving the dwindling supply for upper income groups.

Q. Isn't that what is called favoritism?

A. No, that is what is called conservation. (United Press International)

Press briefings 'meaningless'

by TOM TIEDE

WASHINGTON — Daily around the noon hour the public address system in the White House press room interrupts the poker games and dice rolling to proclaim the convention of the regular briefing. What happens then is testimony to the truth that the gathering of presidential news, like the making of lunchmeat, is often a process best unwitnessed by the consumer.

Example: Some months ago when the tax cut bill was given to the House, reporters at a briefing asked Press Secretary Ron Nessen if the President was going to sign it or veto it. Nessen replied simply: "The president is deciding." That answer, meaningless, was succeded by 15 minutes of the following:

"Ron, can we say firmly he has made a decision?"

A. He is deciding.

"Then is it firm he has not decided?"

A. He is deciding.

"What does that mean, Ron?"

A. He is deciding.

"Well, is he, uh, leaning in one direction or the other?"

And so on.

By purpose the briefing is the shortest line between White House activity and the public's right to know. In reality it is more often used for propaganda by the administration and the posturing by the press. The result commonly is that hard information seldom surfaces above the overlay of gossipy, routine pronouncements.

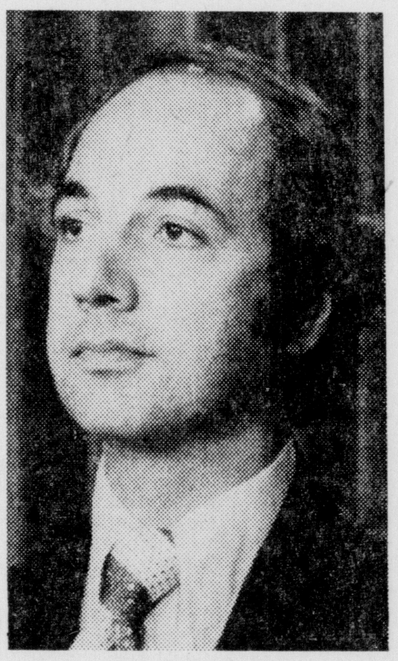
Actually, such is to be expected. Presidents have seldom been willing to freely divulge news other than that felt prudently obligatory, or self-serving. Press briefings, therefore, have rarely supplied as much data as they've suppressed. What makes the situation more serious today is that the press remains culpable in circumstances that cheat the public. The lessons of Watergate be damned, reporters have done almost nothing to increase meaningful White House news flow and almost everything to, in effect, deny it.

Not that reporters inhibit the news purposely. The rub is that their attempts to get more of it have been largely counterproductive. Where the pre-Watergate idea of White House coverage was to lounge around the press room asking questions, the idea now seems to be to lounge around asking loaded questions. Briefings remain the principal news source, therefore, but they have become so raucous that even what small value they have is diminished. Press Secretary Nessen has been so upset during briefing encounters that he has at times forgotten to announce (or purposely withheld) news items on the agenda.

Indeed the affairs have grown overripe. A minister who is also a newspaper columnist attends regularly, in collar, to ask non-questions designed solely to force non-answers. A woman correspondent from Texas, "a briefing regular since the days of Grant," is so irritating even fellow reporters groan and snicker.

Some White House press staffers fret privately about violence. At one briefing a reporter who felt his questions were being evaded balled his hand into an obscene gesture and pointed it at Nessen until the session ended.

At best the press corps pressure is futile. Press secretaries are hired hands, and press briefings are devices used by their employers for limited purposes. Besides, as a Nessen assistant explains, "We truthfully don't know many of the answers the press wants. Ron is not a policy maker. I am not a policy maker. The President doesn't actually confide in either of us to any great length. If you insist on asking how Jerry Ford views John Connally, well, go ahead ask, but we can't tell you because we just don't know."



RON NESSEN

The real problem with press briefings then is that so many reporters — and thereby so many U.S. citizens — rely so heavily on them to provide the Administration gospel. Asking officials to inform on themselves would seem a fairly obvious waste of time, yet it remains the primary strategy of White House news coverage.

So it is, one year after Richard Nixon, and in the main, the administration continues to be in control of what is seen of it, what is said of it and what is thought of it. And this as post-Watergate scribes continue to report that Jerry Ford is the most open president in memory.

Lifting the gag rule

Now it's going to be easier for a lawyer to talk with reporters about cases in which he's involved, and that's a break for the public.

Last week the U.S. Court of Appeals for the 7th Circuit ruled unconstitutional part of the American Bar Association's code of ethics. The section prohibited lawyers from discussing some aspects of cases with reporters.

The majority rule said that the "gag" rules applied to civil cases were unconstitutional — as were such rules in criminal cases, but the ABA's rules in criminal cases should be rewritten to provide a "narrower and more restrictive standard."

The result of this ruling must not be a stampede to "try" cases in the news media; that's not the point of the decision. What it is designed to accomplish is to allow newsmen more information on cases, and thus allow them to write more meaningful news stories for the general public.

The public will be served well by this basic extension of the right to know about what's happening in the criminal justice process. The news media must be responsible in using this new freedom, for the ruling is no excuse for the reckless disregard of the constitutional rights of defendants to a free trial.

Dateline 1775

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 12 — The committee of safety took three British officers into custody from the ship Hope out of Cork, Ireland. They were ordered to sign a pledge not to bear arms against the American cause for 12 months. A supply of military clothing also was taken from the ship.

He rips salary hikes

Isn't it amazing that the one issue politicians of both parties and at all levels of politics agree on, increased benefits and salary increases for themselves.

Our so-called defenders of the public, again at all levels of politics, are manipulated by vested interests and their own avarice, which is unlimited.

A naive President who appears unable to grasp the seriousness of the every day struggle of living. Who surrounds himself with advisers who in turn represent and protect vested interests.

Endless investigations and debates regarding CIA, FBI and Watergate are safe political issues but are not solving the immediate problems of today's economy. The coming elections might provide a rude awakening for many of our glib, so-called defenders of the public interest. The average American may not be able to change the rules in these self-perpetuating country clubs but they will change the membership roster. If they don't believe it, they can ask the many unemployed and the many who are struggling to survive.

U.S. grain yield forecasts drop

More wheat sales to Russia suspended

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Dept. Monday reduced its forecasts of grain production for the United States and the Soviet Union, and Agriculture Sec. Earl Butz ordered a further delay in additional grain sales to Russia.

The department's August crop report showed that drought in the western Corn Belt and parts of the Great Plaines had cut the potential 1975 corn crop — a key to future food price prospects — to 5.850 billion bushels.

The new estimate, although 196 million bushels below July prospects, was still an all-time record. Butz predicted that if the crop is harvested without further substantial loss, grain sales to Russia will have only "negligible" impact on American food prices.

However, because of the drop from July and the possibility that continuing drought since Aug. 1 may have made even further inroads, Butz said he had asked American exporters and Soviet officials to "refrain from any more contracts at least until we see more about what's goingon."

BUTZ SAID THE suspension of further sales — continuing a hold order imposed after the Soviets ordered 9.8 million tons of American grain in July — was adopted "to be on the safe side."

"We do want to sell more to the U.S.S.R. and if this U.S. crop materializes, it will be easily within our capacity to do so," Butz said.

In addition to the new U.S. corn forecast, the Agriculture Dept.'s August crop report put wheat production at a record 2.141 billion bushels, down from 47 million bushels from last year but 19 per cent above last year's record.

The corn estimate was 26 per cent above last year's poor crop but 3 per cent above the previous record.

Soybean production was estimated at 1.458 billion bushels, up 18 per cent from last year.

IN ANOTHER report, based on word from a U.S. team just back from an inspection of drought-stricken Soviet fields, officials cut their estimate of the 1975 Soviet grain harvest to 180 million tons, 5 million below a previous forecast. Officials said this means Russia will have to import about 25 million tons instead of the 20 million previously predicted.

Total U.S. grain production, in comparison, was put at 278 million tons, including 71 million tons of wheat, rye and rice and 207 million tons of corn and other livestock feed grains.

Officials declined to speculate on how much additional grain might be sold to Russia beyond the 9.8 million tons already committed. But they said Russia probably will need at least 8-9 million tons more than it has already ordered from the United States and other countries, and additional U.S. sales conceivably could reach slightly over 5 million tons.

DON PAARLBERG, the Agriculture Dept.'s chief economist, said the agency is not yet ready to officially revise its forecast that 1975 average food prices will be only 6 to 8 per cent above 1974 compared with a 14.5 per cent jump last year.

Officials have said, however, that the gain is likely to be slightly greater than 6 to 8 per cent, although Butz repeated earlier contentions that the extra advance would not be sizable.

Assistant Agriculture Secretary Richard Bell said new forecasts of U.S. export sales take into account possible further sales to Russia along with potential increased shipments to Eastern Europe.

BUTZ DECLINED to say when possible further sales to Russia would be allowed, but hinted the subject would be reexamined after the Agriculture Department's next crop report in early September.

He said he was continuing an informal export control for Russia in order to avoid putting restrictions on sales to other countries.

THE SEASON'S first formal estimate of soybean production was 1.458 billion bushels, up 18 per cent from last year and in line with an earlier tentative projection of 1.4 billion to 1.5 billion bushels.

Total production of all livestock feed grains — corn, grain, sorghum, barley and oats — was put at 207 million tons, up 25 per cent from last year. The feed grains and soybeans furnish basic raw materials for meat, poultry and other livestock foods which make more than half of typical consumer food bills.

THE REPORT estimated grain sorghum production at 810.9 million bushels and indicated that production of sugar crops — despite beet losses caused by an early July flood in Minnesota and North Dakota — would be up from last year.

In view of these and other forecasts, total U.S. production of all crops for 1975 was put at a record 122 per cent of the 1967 average compared with last year's 110 per cent.

The report said grain prospects were trimmed from last month because of unusually dry and warm weather in the central and northern Great Plains and the western corn belt. Crops were hurt in Iowa, South Dakota and Missouri but improved generally in nearly all states in the East, South and West.

Per-acre yield of corn was estimated at 87.4 bushels, down three bushels from last month, compared with last year's sub-par figure of 71.3 bushels. Corn acreage for harvest was put at 66.9 million acres compared with 65.2 million last year.

SUMMER POTATO production was estimated at 20.8 million hundredweight compared with 25.2 million hundredweight last year.No estimate of the fall potato crop, which makes up the bulk of the harvest, will be issued until October.

The new wheat estimate included 1,634,227,000 bushels of winter wheat which is now almost entirely harvested, compared with 1,636,524,000 bushesl forecast last month and 1,391,303,000 bushels produced last year.

It also included 124,877,000 bushels of durum wheat compared with 133,068,000 estimated last month and 79,245,000 produced last year. It projected 381,527,000 bushels estimated last month and 322,774,000 last year.

Record state corn crop ranks No. 1 in the nation

Illinois, with a hefty assist from the weatherman, moved into the top spot among corn-producing states on the basis of a report released Monday by the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture. The USDA report projected Illinois 1975 corn production at 1.16 billion bushels compared to 1.09 billion for Iowa, perennial champion. The estimates were based on information compiled to Aug. 1.

In the USDA's previous estimate, July 1, Iowa's production was projected at 1.28 billion bushels. However, unseasonably dry weather in the northwestern portion of the state forced a cutback in the earlier estimate and Illinois made it to the top from its usual runner-up position.

Illinois also was projected at the top in per-acre yield at 109 bushels, compared with Iowa's 91 bushels. Illinois plantings covered 10,650 acres to Iowa's 12,000, the USDA report said. None of the other states approached Illinois or Iowa in production. Indiana production, estimated at 560 million bushels, was third highest. Next came Nebraska, at 514 million bushels, and Minnesota, at 501 million.

Total corn production estimated by the USDA was set at a record 5.849 billion bushels compared with the previous high of 5.643 set in 1973. Iowa's 1974 production was 948 million bushels, compared with 830 million for runnerup Illinois, in a year when a severe drought cut deeply into the crop throughout the U.S.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Nephritis means inflamed kidneys

I was told by one doctor that I had nephritis, but my current doctor said that I didn't. Just exactly what is nephritis? How can you really tell if you have it? Is it serious?

I also have a problem with fallen kidneys. Is it serious, and is there any way to improve this condition? My backaches just seem to be getting worse and worse.

The kidney is made up of small units that filter the blood and collect the urine that is filtered out. These small units are called nephrons. The study of kidney problems is sometimes called nephrology. When the nephrons are inflamed from any cause the condition is called nephritis.

The inflammation can be from a germ (infection) or it can be from a chemical or allergic reaction. One of the common forms of nephritis in children is a type of allergic reaction to a previous strep throat. The strep infection does not infect the kidney, but the body's reaction to the strep infection sets off an allergic-like reaction involving our immune system that inflames the kidney. In this sense the kidney damage is comparable to the heart damage that occurs from rheumatic fever after a strep throat.

An infection of the central collective area of the kidney may also involve the delicate nephrons and is called pyleonephritis. A variety of germs may be involved here.

You can get a pretty good idea of the presence or absence of nephritis by examining the urine. X rays of the kidneys, including dye studies to see how they filter the blood and collect urine, are sometimes helpful. In some cases it is necessary to use a special needle and remove a small needleful of kidney tissue to study under a microscope to define just what, if anything is wrong with the kidney.

Since the term nephritis includes a lot of different diseases, its significance really depends on which one of these diseases is present and how badly damaged the kidney is, if at all. A transitory kidney infection may not leave any important residual damage, or it can leave severe damage. One way of telling the degree of damage is by kidney function tests that measure the capacity of the kidney to filter the blood properly and to concentrate and to dilute urine for proper water balance. It is a whole specialty in itself.

Fallen kidneys is something different. A major drop in the kidney location may not be important. In some people when they stand up one or both kidneys may fall down in such a way as to cause a kink in the ureter tube that drains urine from the kidney to the bladder. The kinked tube can cause a buildup of pressure in the kidney from collected urine and lead to back pain and other symptoms. When it is a major problem, the kidney can be surgically tacked up so it can't fall down.

Last, while kidney disease can cause back pain there are many other causes of back pain. A complete medical evaluation is necessary to find out its cause.

Dow Jones climbs 6.02 to 823.76

Oversold market rallies late

NEW YORK (UPI) — An oversold stock market rallied Monday afternoon to close mixed in light trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Buying picked up after the Commerce Dept. reported a surge in July retail sales and helped send the Dow Jones industrial average 6.02 points higher to 823.76. It had been off more than four points at one time during the day.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index gained 0.53 to 86.55. The average price of an NYSE common share increased by 15 cents. Declines, however, topped advances, 739 to 585, among the 1,779 issues crossing the tape. Earlier, declines had held a two-to-one advantage.

VOLUME TOTALED 12,350,000 shares, up from the 11,660,000 traded Friday, the slowest session of the year.

Wall Street, according to some analysts, apparently was encouraged later by an Agriculture Dept. report revising downward its corn crop estimate by 3 per cent and its wheat production forecast by 2 per cent. Even with the downward revisions, the crops would set records.

After the market closed, Agriculture Sec. Earl Butz put a lid on further grain sales for an indefinite period until the department had more time to assess the effects of those already consummated.

FEDERAL NATIONAL Mortgage led the Big Board actives, up ½ to 14 1/8 on 277,300 shares, including a late block of 230,000 shares at 14. Polaroid followed, up 1¼ to 34¾ on 258,800 shares. Westinghouse Electric was third, off 1/8 to 14 7/8 on 165,400 shares.

Prices closed lower in light trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of an Amex share lost one cent. Volume totaled 1,450,000 shares, compared with 1,480,000 traded Friday.

Rebels win playoff championship to make up for earlier setbacks

Milton Richman

A third-place finish in the Greater Illinois Baseball League and no invitation to the National Baseball Federation Tournament left the Northwest Rebels just one more shot at some glory this summer — the weekend playoffs.

The Rebels split a doubleheader with the Chicago Cardinals on Friday to wind up the season with a 21-7 record, falling behind New Trier and the champion Chicago Hornets.

Then, on Saturday, the playoffs began and the Rebels were after the prizes that eluded them during the regular season. They suceeded by taking this title.

It was the Rebels and the Cragin Merchants at Niles East Saturday morning in the first game of the playoffs and the winner advanced to the semi-finals Sunday. Only the top eight finishers in the league were eligible for the playoffs.

Randy Cordova threw eight gutty innings with a sore back and allowed only a pair of unearned runs as the Rebels jumped on the Merchants 3-2.

Bruce Hanson and George Vukovich each had three hits while Scott Day and Ron DeBolt had two hits apiece.

Mike Groot tripled to drive in a pair of runs.

The Rebels were matched with Skokie in the semi-final game and Willie Kozel, who completed the season with an ERA of 1.66 in 63 innings of work, worked all nine innings to send the Rebels into the championship 3-2.

George Vukovich, who was a robust 9-for-16 in the playoffs, singled in the top of the fifth with the Rebels ahead 2-1. Vukovich, who also swiped a couple bases during his 3-for-4 game, then went to third on a single by Scott Day.

On the subsequent play, Day broke from first in what looked like an attempted steal. But when the catcher threw to nail him Day stopped on the base paths and Vukovich broke for the plate.

The throw back to the catcher had Vukovich beat but he slid under the tag, hooking the plate with his toe for what proved to be the winning run.

Two old friends, the Rebels and the Hornets, met for the playoff championship Sunday evening and the regular season champions took early control with a five-run second inning.

But the Rebels, who were trailing 8-4 in the sixth, swept into the lead with a five-run inning of their own.

In the bottom of the sixth Ralph Baker walked and Vukovich and Day followed with singles to load the bases for Ron DeBolt, who homered to tie the game.

Dean Sheridan scored the go ahead run later in the inning when he reached on a two-base error and was doubled home by Wally Weiner.

Rick Peekel was on the mound for the Rebels and when the game began he knew he would be there until it was over. Eleven innings after he started Peekel was lifted for a pinch hitter, tied in an 11-11 game.

"Rick was our pitcher right from the start," said Rick Marino, the Rebels' manager. "Our whole staff had sore arms and we just didn't have anybody to fill in. I got worn out just warming up."

The Rebels' sticks wrapped Peekel in some semblance of security as they boosted runs across in six different innings. Vukovich was 3-for-6, Scott Scholten 2-for-6, and DeBolt 3-for-4 with five RBIs.

Ralph Baker, who went 3-for-5, saved his biggest stroke of the season for just the right moment.

Hanson was the pinch hitter who replaced Peekel and he knocked out a base hit. Mike Groot hit when Hanson was running and the sacrifice moved him to second.

Then Baker dropped a soft Texas Leaguer between the first and second basemen and the Rebels had won the Greater Illinois Baseball League playoffs, 12-11.

Alston will survive as always

NEW YORK (UPI) — Walt Alston sits there in the manager's chair the same way he always has. His expression seldom changes. He sits with his back straight against the chair and with his eyes taking in everything around him.

Things haven't been going that well for him generally, even though his Los Angeles Dodgers have won their last three straight, but he is far from being defeated. On the contrary, he looks like a winner.

Sitting there at his desk, Alston reminds me a lot of Gerald Ford. He has the same basic philosophy of life, enjoys his job as much as Ford does, despite the headaches, and has enough of the same Midwest pattern in his speech that he even sounds like the President sometimes when he speaks.

"I've never met him," Alston says "But I did meet Henry Kissinger when he came into our clubhouse at the All-Star game. I said to him, "You think you have a tough job? Managing these National League All-Stars isn't that easy either.' He laughed."

Walt Alston also laughs, telling the story.

So far, his Los Angelas Dodgers have been a disappointment this season. National League champs last year, they trail Cincinnati's disappearing Reds in the NL West by 15½ games now with less than eight weeks left, but the farthest thought from Walt Alston's mind is giving up.

"That'd be the last thing you ever do," he says. "We're not out of it yet. What we have to do is play better. I have not given up and the first ball player on his club who gives me the impression he has, his butt will be out of there so fast, he won't know what hit him."

Alston, 63, is completing his 22nd consecutive year managing the Dodgers. When it comes to uninterrupted service with one club, no other manager around can touch him. He has survived a trans-continental move, a couple of last-place finishes and even a couple of earthquakes and is in less danger of losing his job now than when he was first hired in 1954.

Naturally, Alson saw that four major league managers lost their jobs within the past three weeks, and naturally he felt badly for each of them. Mostly for Yogi Berra because he was a bit closer to him than the other three.

"I've always liked Yogi," says Alston. "We've been buddies, except on the field."

Alston reaches into his locker for his Dodger shirt, puts it on and I ask him if he was ever worried about being fired.

"Funny as it may sound, I never gave it much thought," he says. "When I first got the job, I was so thankful, I made up my mind I wasn't going to worry about something I had no control over. It's been that way all my life. I've been through some good and some bad years, but even in the bad years, if I did all I felt I could, I didn't worry about what was going to happen. When you take this job, you gotta realize there's going to be a lotta disappointments, aggravation and trying times. You gotta like what you're doing, and if you don't do so well today, you hope you can do better tomorrow. You do the best you can."

The Dodgers have more good young talent than most clubs. One of Alston's biggest problems is determining which player to use and which to keep on the bench on any given day.

"Sometimes it's a little tough on a club like this one where the guy on the bench is just as good as the fella playing," he says. "It's not like the old Brooklyn Club where you know guys like Robinson, Campy, Hodges, Furillo, Pee Wee, Snider and Gilliam will play every day."

While Alston is talking in his private office, Dodger centerfielder Jim Wynn is teasing rightfielder Willie Crawford in the clubhouse, trying to get a rise out of him. Wynn sees that left-hander Jerry Koosman is going to start for the Mets against the Dodgers. Crawford, a left-handed hitter, isn't in the line-up, so Wynn decides to agitate him about it.

"Yeah, yeah, you can't play against left-handers anymore, Jive turkey!" Wynn shouts at Crawford even though he's less than two feet away from Him. "If you have any guts, you'll go in there and tell Alston you wanna play centerfield."

Crawford says he'll do it. Wynn says he doesn't believe him, whereupon Crawford gets up and marches directly into Alston's office.

"I wanna play centerfield today," he says to the Dodger manager, the high pitch in his voice automatically giving him away.

Willie Crawford can't hold back anymore. His eyes light up and he starts laughing.

"See, Jive turkey," he hollers out the door to Jim Wynn. "I told you I'd do it!"

Conant golf team schedules first meeting

TV commercials at Superdome

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The art of football watching has now come the full cycle.

When the television magicians began to employ more cameras and instant replays, the comment was — watching the game at home is better than watching it at the stadium.

But now, with the opening of the Louisiana Superdome last Saturday night, that comment has turned to — "Watching football in here is just like being at home, only more so."

Among the other treats the Superdome had to offer during a New Orleans Saints opening night meeting with Houston were the 22-by-26 foot television screens that draped down over the playing field.

Not only did instant replay show up on the screens, but so did commercials. And just like at home, the sound track on the commercials was a lot louder than anything else coming out of the sound system in the 52-acre stadium.

"The ads on the screen were a damn nuisance," said Houston placekicker Alan Pringle. "How distracting. They ought to keep television in the front room with the beer cans."

But Pringle had to go along with the vast majority of the 72,000 fans who filled the still uncompleted stadium for the first game. He thought the edifice was fairly spectacular.

"It is an impressive place," he said. "I just hope it doesn't cost anymore than it already has ($163.5 million). They are ideal conditions to play in."

New Orleans lineman Jake Kupp also found the jingles for automobile dealerships, banks and resort communities somewhat out of place.

"When we were calling plays and talking things over during time outs, it was pretty hard to hear," said Kupp. "We were getting a lot of echo."

Houston coach Bum Phillips, whose team won 13-7, found the stadium to his liking.

"Whatever it cost, it is worth it," said Phillips. "It's a great place, and a great place to watch football. The city should be proud of it.

"The stadium itself certainly did not alter play. A football field is 100 yards and that's the end of it."

About the only complaints coming from first nighters were typical of such occasions. Concession lines were long, restrooms lines were long and there was some difficulty with directions once inside the stadium. Traffic, however, flowed well both before and after the contest.

One of the more dissatisfied customers was Mrs. C. W. Walters of Morgan City, La., whose family had to climb at a precipitous 34-degree angle to reach their upper deck seats.

"We've been to the Astrodome in Houston five straight years, and I'm afraid we're going to go back," she said. "The climb made me dizzy and the food in the Astrodome is better. You don't get cold hot dogs there."

Jinik competes with 'Zoomies'

Daniel Jinik of Arlington Heights is one of seven cadets who compete on the Air Force pistol shooting team.

"The Zoomies versus the Woops" is a key phrase in the National Shooting Championships sponsored by the National Rifle Association.

That's what the Air Force cadets have termed a rivalry between themselves and the West Point cadets. Both the army and the air force cadets are competing along with shooters from all over the United States.

"The Zoomies" is a name given to the Air Force cadets, and the "Woops" is a shortened name for the West Pointers. Last year, the West Point shooters scored higher than the Air Force cadets.

Jinik, 20, is a junior studying life science and intends to enter pre-medical studies.

Other members of the Air Force team are Brent Bristow, Jesse Huerta, Robert Kleinhans, David McFaddin, and Andy Winner.

All the cadets agreed their visit to Camp Perry, Ohio, for the Nationals was a nice summer break. In the fall they will return to the Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs, Colo., to resume their studies.

No second trial

Dave Forbes gets reprieve

Hennepin County Attorney Gary Flakne Monday announced he will not seek to put Boston Bruins' forward Dave Forbes on trial a second time and will ask (Minneapolis) District Court Judge Rolf Fosseen Tuesday to dismiss an aggravated assault charge.

A mistrial was declared July 18 in Forbes' initial trial when a jury failed to reach a decision after 18 hours' deliberation. He was the first hockey player to stand trial for conduct during a game.

Forbes was charged with aggravated assault with a deadly weapon — his hockey stick — in connection with a fight with the Minnesota North Stars' Henry Boucha during a hockey game last Jan. 4.

"There is no reasonable basis to believe a second trial would result in conviction," Flakne said at a news conference. "I am convinced that no matter how carefully selected the next jurors might be, they could not reach unanimity if the case was retried.

"It would only serve to harass and make an example of Mr. Forbes. This would be wrong."

Both players had served time in the penalty box for an earlier fight and they clashed again when they returned to the ice. Boucha, now with the Minnesota Fighting Saints of the World Hockey Association, received a serious eye injury which has left him with double vision.

Flakne said he believed the jury's 9-3 vote in favor of conviction in the first trial was "a fair and accurate community consensus with regard to game violence in general and the action of Mr. Forbes in particular."

"We have served notice on the National Hockey League and others that extraordinarily violent acts will not be tolerated in this community and that athletes, no matter in what sport they participate, will not be immune from prosecution should they conduct themselves in a manner similar to that of the defendant," he said.

Flakne said he met with NHL President Clarence Campbell in Montreal before making his decision and told him that he "would not hesitate to follow the same course of action" in similar circumstances.

He said Campbell, who had suspended Forbes from 10 games as a result of the attack, remained neutral in the trial issue.

"The whole intention of the trial was not to reform the game of hockey — it's not for the courts or prosecutors to do that," Flakne said. "Hockey has to look at its own house and put it in order."

Flakne had postponed his decision on whether to seek another trial for a week after he said he obtained new evidence involving another alleged attack by Forbes while he was playing for a farm club that would prove a "past standard of conduct outside the line of normal conduct."

FOOLISH PLEASURE

Worth $4.5 million

Foolish Pleasure deal?

Foolish Pleasure, the Kentucky Derby winner and currently top-ranking 3-year-old colt in the country, is in the process of being syndicated for $4.5 million, but the deal won't be completed before Saturday.

"Send me the money, and then I'll believe it, otherwise, it's kind of premature," LeRoy Jolley, Foolish Pleasure's trainer, said Monday at Saratoga. Jolly is also managing the arrangements for the syndication.

The What a Pleasure-Fool Me Not, by Tom Fool colt has won 12 of 15 lifetime starts. He was unbeaten as the 2-year-old Horse of the Year in seven starts and this year his only losses were second place finishes in the Preakness and Belmont Stakes and a third place in the Florida Derby.

In his last start he was matched in a $350,000 race against tragedy-stricken, Ruffian, winning uncontested when the previously undefeated filly broke her right foreleg and had to be destroyed.

Perhaps thinking back to that last race, potential investors are waiting until this Saturday's 1¼-mile, $100,000 added Travers Stakes, the oldest 3-year-old stakes race in North America, is completed before making a final decision.

Foolish Pleasure will be entered against a top field of 3-year-olds, which probably will include Wajima, the $600,000 yearling; Canadian champion L'Enjoleur; Western star Forceten, winner of the Jim Dandy Stakes here; Prince Thou Art, who beat him in the Florida Derby; Dwyer Stakes-winning Valid Appeal; Media and Intrepid Hero.

The outcome of the race is likely to figure in the sucess of the syndication. A win might possibly hike the purchase price; an adverse showing could also affect the transaction.

At his home in Knoxville, John L. Greer, Foolish Pleasure's owner, maintained that the deal to syndicate the colt, purchased originally two years ago by Greer for $20,000, has already been completed.

Cincy beats Cubs, 9-3; Bucs gain ground

The Cincinnati Reds, baseball's most productive team with a .664 win percentage based on 77-39, performed a 9-3 number on the Cubs Monday night as George Foster was 5-for-5 and Ken Griffey added four hits.

Foster and Griffey each had two runs-batted in. Foster doubled and Griffey tripled.

Jack Billingham (13-5) won the decision over Chicago starter Rich Reuschel (8-13). Cincinnati rapped 15 hits off four Cub pitchers to support Billingham's first complete game since July 30.

chicago led, 3-1, until Pete Rose's triple touched off a two-run fifth for Cincinnati. The Reds took a 5-3 lead after six innings, then added four insurance runs in the eighth.

Steve Swisher had two RBI's and Andy Thornton one for Chicago which dropped nine games below .500 at 55-64.

The White Sox were not scheduled.

Elsehwere, Andy Messersmith hurled a four-hitter as the Los Angeles Dodgers walloped Philadelphia, 7-1. The game meant nothing to Los Angeles which remained 15½ back of Cincinnati in the NL West.

But Philadelphia fell three games back in the NL East when a six-run rally in the ninth sparked division leading Pittsburgh to an 8-1 victory over Atlanta.

The Dodgers never trailed at Philadelphia after scoring three runs in the visitors' second. Greg Luzinski, from Prospect Heights, belted his major league leading 29th homer for the Phillies only run, also in the second.

Pittsburgh held a 2-1 lead over Atlanta through eight, but three singles plus doubles by Dave Parker and Manny Sanguillen built the Bucs' six-run ninth.

St. Louis fell to 6½ behind Pittsburgh when Larry Dierker's 11th complete game and Jerry DaVanon's three-run homer produced a 7-2 win for Houston.

Over in the American League, Gaylord Perry pitched a five-hitter that was Detroit's third consecutive shutout loss in a 16-game losing streak and extended the Tigers scoreless innings to 29 straight in a 7-0 triumph for the Texas Rangers.

Perry raised his record to 12-15 by striking out seven and giving up four singles.

Tax break helps fight game

New York Gov. Hugh Carey signed a bill Monday that will give boxers and other professional athletes a tax break on income earned from closed circuit and cable television transmissions of events staged in that state. The state had lost most prize fighting due to stringent tax laws. Joe Frazier outpointed Muhammad Ali on March 8, 1971, in the last New York-based heavyweight championship fight . . .

Spanish Davis Cup ace Manuel Orantes crushed Wimbledon champion Arthur Ashe, 6-2, 6-2, Monday night for his second National Clay Court tennis championship. Orantes, 26, who won two years ago, needed less than an hour to polish off Ashe. Orantes won $16,000 for his troubles, and Ashe $8,000.

Jack Nicklaus' $45,000 PGA championship win Sunday solidified his hold as the tour's leading money winner. Nicklaus has $248,599. Tom Weiskopf is second at $203,315 . .

Players from nearly every National Basketball Association team will participate tonight in the 17th annual Maurice Stokes Memorial Game in Monticello, N. Y.

Eyeless worms sensitive to light

Andy sends a complete 20-volume set of the Merit Students Encyclopedia to Steve Murphy, 10, of Kenwood, Calif., for his question:

DO WORMS HAVE EYES?

Surely the earthworm is one of nature's most remarkable small miracles. He has no legs, yet he can travel from here to there and dig himself a burrow. He is both a mother and a father; and when cut in half chances are he can regrow himself into two complete worms. Though he has no human-type eyes, he can tell daylight from darkness and even detect the shadow of a hungry robin.

The earthworm has no eyes like those of the higher animals. But you can prove for youself that he has some sort of vision. Take a flashlight and wait by his burrow in the dim light of early dawn or late evening. These are the times when he is most likely to crawl forth to forage for food. Wait until his head and the front end of his body emerge from his tunnel. Then turn on your flashlight.

Almost at once the little fellow stops and shrinks back into his dark burrow. Obviously, he was able to detect your beam of light — and avoid it. He performs this impossible miracle with the help of special cells buried in his soft pink skin which are sensitive to light and attached to nerves that flash messages, ordering the worm to retreat from the light to a more shady region.

Most of his light-sensitive cells are concentrated in the head and tail ends of his wormy body. This is where he needs them most, because the two ends of his body are more likely to be exposed above the ground. These remarkable cells are sensitive enough to detect moving patches of shadow, which explains how he can sense the presence of a hungry robin — often in time to make a getaway.

The earthworm has another important reason for avoiding the bright light of day. His soft pink skin tends to dry up and shrivel in warm sunny air — which is fatal. To survive he must stay moist, and his safest place is down in his dark burrow where the air is cool and damp.

The earthworm also has taste cells to select favorite foods, and other cells that tell him about temperature changes. Though he has no ears, his skin has bundles of cells that sense vibrations. To him, footsteps must feel like shuddering earthquakes warning him to scoot back down to his burrow.

Andy sends a 7-volume set of the Chronicles of Narnia to Nancy Higgins, 12, of Florence, S.C., for her question:

DOES THE EARTH ROTATE IN A SPECIAL DIRECTION

Our big round planet spins around in an easterly direction, and it also bowls around its orbit in an easterly direction. In fact, this is the most stylish direction in the solar system. Most of the planets rotate toward the east, and all of them orbit eastward around their orbits. Even the starry sun rotates in an easterly direction.

As the earth rotates toward the east, it turns us around to face first one view and then another view of outer space. This is why the heavenly bodies rise above the eastern horizon and set in the west. As we whirl around toward the east, they appear to travel up and over the sky in a westward direction.

How to get, play a four-heart contract

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

If the bidding of today's hand looks funny, don't blame us. Victor Mollo wanted South to be in a four-heart contract and this shows how he might get there. Victor asks, "After ruffing the spade lead what cards should be played to the next three tricks?"

Th answer is: "Ace, of diamonds, king of diamonds, ace of clubs."

If South can score seven tricks in trumps plus two diamonds and one club, he makes his contract. in other words, a cross ruff is indicated.

It is easy to see why he cashes dummy's ace and king of diamonds to prepare the cross ruff. It is a trifle harder to see why the ace of clubs is taken next. However, look what happens if South doesn't cash that ace of clubs.

When South ruffs a diamond, East discards one club; when he ruffs the last diamond East discards his last club. South makes seven trumps and two diamonds, but the ace of clubs has been made into a loser.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Small businesses

Bill would aid the 'little guy'

Legislation based on a proposed federal law written by U. S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, to provide small business with relief from government harassment will be introduced in the Illinois General Assembly by State Rep. John E. Porter, R-Evanston.

The bill would provide for reimbursement of legal expenses for resisting orders of state regulatory agencies when the businessman is found innocent of alleged violations.

Crane's bill makes the same provision for federal regulatory agencies. It was endorsed recently by U.S. News and World Report Magazine, which cited a 1961 case in which four salt producers spent $775,000 in legal expenses — five times more than the maximum possible fine — in winning acquittal of price-fixing charges.

"The proposal is intended to put business, particularly small business, on a more equal footing with the regulatory agencies," Porter said. "Currently such agencies wield such a threat that businessmen too often capitulate to their demands in order to save costly litigation."

Porter said the threat of the state paying for a successful defense against government charges would make regulatory agencies reluctant to issue orders "of questionable merit or legality."

"The legislature and the people would have a good measure of how many unmeritorious suits are being filed by the amount of money we would have to appropriate to pay such fees," Porter said.

Smog hazard increasing in nation's rural areas

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government recently reported smog in both rural and urban areas is more widespread than originally thought and it might be necessary to extend pollution controls into the countryside.

The Environmental Protection Agency released a new study showing that smog, primarily produced from automobiles, is developing in widespread patches of the country, especially in the East, rather than being restricted to the narrow areas around big cities.

"As a result it may be necessary to expand to an area-wide basis some of the pollution control measures now in effect only in urban areas," EPA Administrator Russell E. Train told a news conference.

THE REPORT comes just a few weeks after President Ford asked Congress to further relax the Clean Air Act by freezing the exhaust standards for cars for the next five years.

The control measures that may now be necessary in rural areas includes the inspection of automobiles to make sure exhaust control devices are maintained properly, as well as curbs on the emission of fumes from gasoline stations and dry cleaning establishments. Now, those kinds of controls are in effect only in 30 urban areas around the country.

'Long thought to be primarily an urban problem, oxidant levels well in excess of the health-based ambient air-quality standards are now being observed in broad areas in the eastern third of the United States," Train said. "This pollution is due primarily to man's activity."

Among the rural towns where the report found levels of smog in excess of the health levels were Wilmington, Ohio; McConnelsville, Ohio; Wooster, Ohio; McHenry, Md.; and DuBois, Penn.

Among big cities the five with the worst violations of smog rules were, in order, Los Angeles, New Haven, Sacramento, Denver and San Francisco.

6 new state troopers assigned to area district

Five men and one woman are among local residents who have completed training as Illinois State Troopers assigned to the Des Plaines State Police District.

They include Sheila L. Helms, 31, now of Rolling Meadows and formerly of Coulterville, Ill. She is one of three women selected statewide to become troopers. They are the first women troopers.

Trooper Pamela Grant has also been assigned to the Des Plaines district.

Other new troopers assigned to the Des Plaines district are J. Thomas Fischer, Jr., 27, of Des Plaines, formerly of Godfrey, Ill.; Robert A. Woodard, 26, of Hoffman Estates, formerly of Oakwood, Ill.; Robert D. Meschnark, 26, of Hoffman Estates, formerly of Dawson, Ill.; William A. Merrifield, 24, of Palatine, formerly of Springfield, Ill.; and Carletos Meeks, 24, of Palatine, formerly of Mounds, Ill.

U of I offers graduate credit here

'If you're bad you get put in the corner'

'Grown-up' advice for kindergarteners

by DOROTHY OLIVER

The "big school" down the street or across town looms in the minds of first day kindergarteners stricken with a fearful but exciting fantasy of what goes on inside.

Although it is a momentous occasion, the memory of the fluttery stomach and first day jitters fade with age.

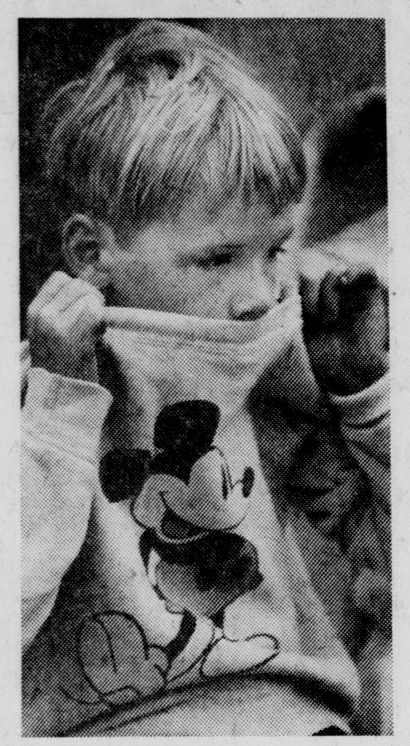
But first graders remember.

And their advice to kindergarteners flows freely as they recall that day they took the big step through the school house door.

Suzanne Moy's face grows serious as she thinks back to September. "I was afraid of the teacher," she said with a frown. "But after a while there wasn't anything to be afraid of and I made a friend — Annette."

Suzanne and her classmates in the Des Plaines Dist. 62 post-kindergarten class talked about their recent experience in kindergarten for the benefit of those who are about to go.

"I would say kindergarten is nice," said Dawn Poppa, 6, who attends Plainfield School. "You play. You do nice stuff. But there are rules and you have to be quiet and listen to the teacher."



"MY FAVORITE thing to wear is my Mickey Mouse sweatshirt," said Danny Gregory.

"We learned to work and to play and to color and to tell time and tie our shoes and read and put on our shoes and play and use crayons," Danny Gregory, 6, said all in one breath. "And we made snowflakes."

"If you don't go to school you won't learn," said Charles Davis, 6, a North School student.

The first graders warned the younger set that there are things they should know before entering school.

"I knew my colors and my numbers but I had to learn my letters," said Dawn.

"You have to learn to zip your jacket," said Ang Lee, 5 a North School student.

"And to tie your shoes," said Lisa Berg, 6, of Forest School.

"You have to get up early so you have to go to bed early and eat a good breakfast," added Andrea Albrecht, 5, a South School student.

The youngster also listed a number of school rules kindergarteners must learn to observe.

"You have to work," said Tammy Little, 6, of South School. "And don't hit."

"When you play on the playground, when the teacher puts her hand up you have to go in," said Dawn.

LISA BERG demonstrates show and tell with instant oatmeal.

"When you're on the slide you have to wait for people to get done before you slide. And you should take turns on the swings and don't push," said Ang.

"And when you're on the playground no pushing or shoving," said 5-year-old Terry Roe. "And don't wear your muddy shoes in the building."

"Yeah," said Charles. "Wipe your shoes off in the grass before you go in the building or the janitor has to wash the floors."

"But don't take your shoes off in the playground cause you'll get splinters from the wood chips," said Danny.

Several children had ominous tales to tell of what happens when you're bad.

"If you're bad you get put in the corner," Charles said.

"The principal will spank you if you're real bad," said Danny with his eyes growing wide. "He's up there for the bad kids."

But they also had their tales of the joys of kindergarten and chattered happily about helping the teacher ("I passeded out pencils and papers," said Andrea.) and going on field trips ("We went to the fire station and we went to the farm and saw a lion," said Ang.) and buying supplies and clothes before the first day of school.

Each found something special about school to talk about. Lisa liked the building because "it's kinda tall and kinda short," and Danny liked the water fountain "because that's where you get a drink of water."

And, of course, they had to talk about the most famous invention of the kindergarten classroom — show and tell.

ANG LEE describes a field trip where "we went to the farm and saw a lion."

"You bring something from home in a bag and tell the class about what you brought," Lisa explained as she held up a package of instant oatmeal, her show and tell for the day. "And the other people are supposed to watch and listen to what you say."

"And you have to remember," said Ang, "no guns at show and tell."

ANDREA ALBRECHT concentrates hard as she talks of her year in kindergarten.

Let youngsters develop views

Psychologists say children should be allowed to develop in their own way and not forced into a parent's ideal of what youngsters should be.

Giving a youngsters love and encouraging him in his endeavors will help him fulfill his potential best, say mental health experts.

The jeans are soft, sun-bleached and snug. The imported sweater is just well-worn enough to be chic. But your hair! Come in, let us repair the damage and suggest a new style. We promise it will be casual, natural and contemporary. Honest!

Feet need checkup, too

Most parents know the value of regular health checkups for their children. But how about their feet? A child's feet grow to almost half their adult size during the first year of life.

As a result, the bones in the feet are soft and pliable at this stage and a target for problems if proper care isn't taken. Regular checkups can help to ensure normal healthy feet.

59.1 million Americans head to classes this fall

by PATRICIA McCORMACK
UPI Education Editor

The Bicentennial school year, opening in September, will attract 59.1 million Americans, from pint-sized to adult.

The number is down slightly from the previous academic year's 59.4 million. It is down also from the peak of 60.2 million in 1971 and is expected to keep declining. This is due to the drop in the birth rate.

The National Center for Education Statistics expects school population to drop to 55.7 million by 1983.

Problems associated with the decline in pupil population in the first twelve grades are expected to continue.

The key problems: a continuation of the teacher surplus, something the educational establishment, particularly teachers' unions, hopes to end.

One plan being pushed would start school at age three, a kind of preschool manned by surplus teachers. Another attack on the surplus, lowering the ratio of pupils to teacher, has just about run its course.

The ratio went from 28.4 in 1963 to 23.3 a decade later. The trend is for it to go to 20.7 by 1983, but there is no guarantee that will happen.

Statistically, the academic year is impressive.

Consider: with kindergarten and nursery school children, the total on the learning trail is 60.8 million. That includes 9.9 million in college; 33.6 million in kindergarten to grade eight; 15.6 million in grades nine to 12; and 1.8 million in kindergarten and nursery.

The bill for this massive quest for knowledge will be $110 billion, including $39.5 billion for higher education. The money comes from federal, state and local tax funds, for the most part.

Nonacademic talk in the nation's schools is expected to center on money, stretching funds to meet bills pumped up by continuing inflation.

The academic world in the year ahead also will be affected quite a bit by two external forces: Title IX and education for relevancy.

Title IX, a part of the Education Act, focuses on equal opportunities for females and minorities on school payrolls.

It also focuses on sex role stereotyping in textbooks, leaving the decision on book selection in the hands of local school boards.

Education for relevancy means schooling that plugs into the real world, especially in terms of preparing students for jobs.

At the grade and high school level, this translates into career education.

At the college level, the pressure for relevancy is great, in light of the number of college graduates who have trouble finding jobs. The 1975 graduates had an especially tough time, due partly to the recession.

LYNN LONGOSE, from Place One in Long Grove, is all ready for that first fall day in her 100 percent acrylic slacks, $15, and striped outer sweater, $16. The long sleeve turtleneck is $12.

Save on wardrobes

Few children stop growing long enough to be able to wear the same clothes one year that they wore the last. So the start of a new school term often means it's time to outfit the kids with new wardrobes.

If you have several children in your family, you're probably already taking advantage of hand-me-downs for rounding-out their wardrobes. And you can form a trading co-op with friends to obtain items not found in your household. But there are other ways to save money and keep the kids looking great.

One way to save is by dressing the kids in co-ordinates. If each shirt or blouse and skirt or pants can be mixed and matched with others, your youngster can have an extensive wardrobe at a relatively small cost.

Another way is to cut down on clothes-cleaning bills. Although some children's clothes are made from wash and wear materials, others, such as sweaters, woolens, jackets and coats, need to be dry cleaned. You can cut down on these bills by using spot-lifter to get rid of many spots and stains on non-washable fabrics. To clean soiled areas, just spray it on, let dry to a fine white powder, and brush the powder away.

To help ensure that your child's good clothes do last, at least until they're outgrown, have the youngster change into play clothes after school.

Leisure suits popular

Leisure suits will be a favorite with little boys this fall as the wee ones take a fashion tip from dad and opt for clothing that has a neater, more dressed up look yet is still casual and easy to wear.

Most of the suits, designed in boy-tested favorites such as the corduroys and denims, team a solid colored jacket with straight leg pants. Mixed with a printed shirt or contrasting turtleneck sweater, they offer an economical way to stretch a youngster's wardrobe from a single fashion look.

Among the silhouettes to choose from are belted jackets outlined with saddle stitching, and shirt style tops, extra dapper when treated with epaulets on pint-sized shoulders. And for the "let's pretend" crowd there are plenty of cowboy style jean suits and suits with authentic baseball or jogging jackets.

Organize snacks

When school is out for the day, hungry students are usually in the refrigerator looking for snacks.

Rather than having your students lingering at the refrigerator door while they survey its contents, try to cut down on the number and duration of refrigerator door openings:

Put all the snack and sandwich food in one area and make sure everyone knows where it is. That way they'll not have to peek behind every pickle jar and milk carton to find the lunch meat.

Another way to eliminate unnecessary door openings is by posting notes, such as:

Yes, we have no bologna.

Cake is in the bread box.

No lemonade today; try milk.

The fudge bars are all gone.

All fruit is on the kitchen table.

Slickers safeguard

Safeguard your youngsters when they go back to school this year. Lessons in traffic safety can help save your children's lives, and dressing them in the right outerwear can help, too.

When choosing coats and jackets for your children, keep color in mind in addition to warmth and fabric. Dress your youngsters in bright-colored outerwear.

The most well-behaved children have lapses in memory when it comes to traffic rules — but if drivers can see them easily (via the bright-colored garb), the chances of an accident occurring if your little one crosses streets against the green or darts out between two cars are minimized.

STARTING FROM the top, Linda Steskal, from Charles A. Stevens in Woodfield, is ready for fall. A camel corduroy beret from Betmar, $9, will make her stand out in a crowd. The long sleeve bulky sweater, $22, together with the striped pullover sweater, $15, and the long sleeve nylon blouse, $9, from Bronson, combine with a Classic of Boston front button green corduroy shirt with self belt. The outfit is accented with an Oscar de la Renta scarf.

Check fabric

Get clothes ready for school by checking buttons and the fabric beneath them.

If the fabric is worn or torn, reinforce or mend it on the underside with iron-on fabric in a matching color.

Before you consider ANY PROGRAM for your PRE-SCHOOL AGE CHILD

. . . consider these questions:

PROGRAM

1. Does the daily program include a variety of activities and a balance between group activities and individual exploration?
2. Can parents visit any time and participate?
3. Is there a choice between developmental programs and Montessori environments?

FACILITIES

1. Are they designed and scaled to young childrens' size, as opposed to just being converted from a building designed for something else?
2. Are they bright and cheerful with ample supplies of natural light?
3. Does each class truly have privacy from the rest of the center?
4. Does the playground have a combination of grass, sand and hard surfaces?

STAFF

1. Do staff members display warmth and concern for children in their manner of speaking to and working with them?
2. Do the director and lead teachers exhibit a thorough knowledge of the stages of children's growth?
3. Are staff members actively involved in advancing their knowledge of early childhood development?

Visit all nearby centers, find out answers to these questions by observing and asking. Even check with the Illinois Dept. of Children and Family services (793-3014). Only select a program after comparing the QUALITY of centers . . . This much you owe your child.

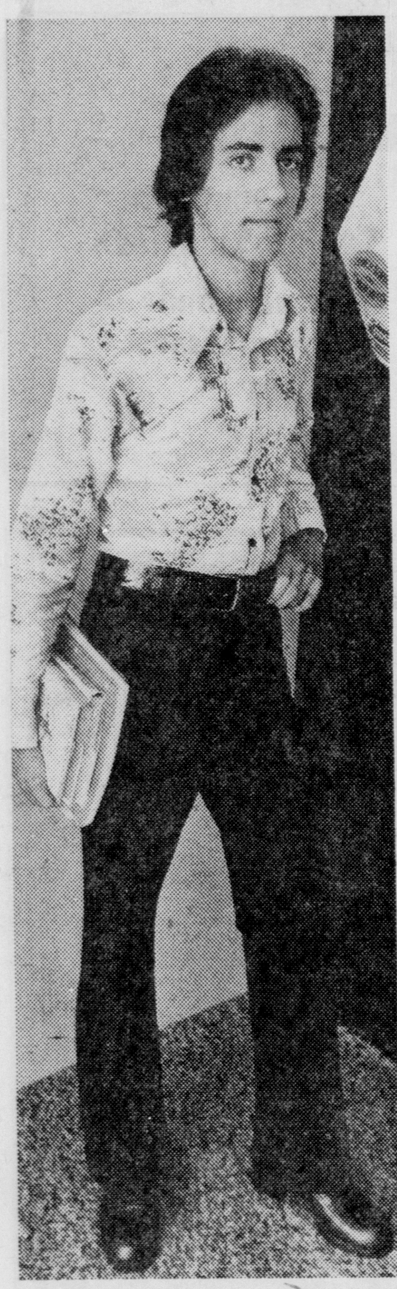
LINDA STEVENS, from the Lorraine-Anne Shop in Arlington Heights, is ready for anything in this jacket and pants from Jack Winter. In polyester corduroy, the jacket is priced at $36 and the slacks are $22.



YOU'LL LOOK SMART in these slacks and shirt which are both completely washable and stapress. Each is priced at $16 at the Man's Shop, Countryside Court, in Mount Prospect.

Sensible outfits

Versatile clothes make lots of sense to students on a budget. A warm-up suit that's good-looking enough to make fashion tracks beyond the jogging trail is an excellent investment.

Terry is the best fabric; patch pockets, elasticized waistline and zippered front are the most wanted details.

READING, WRITING and arithmetic are only a few of the subjects to choose from at the Book Fair in Countryside Court in Mount Prospect. Whether looking for a certain book or just browsing, these young students have already discovered it's relaxing to shop at the Book Fair.

Have school eye check

Eyesight is important to the learning process, both physically and psychologically. About 80 per cent of our knowledge is gained through our eyes, reports the Consumer Research Department of a pharmaceutical house. But the condition in which our eyes receive knowledge also subtly influences our reaction to the information.

A student studying often and long in poor lighting slumps close to the page to see better, incurring both eye strain and muscle fatigue. It's easy to imagine why a student studying regularly under these conditions won't like that subject, or, simply, won't like to read. It's too hard.

Choose a study desk or table large enough — about two feet by four feet — to allow enough space for books and papers. The surface should be a light to medium color, to prevent too sharp a contrast with the lighted work. If a dark table is the only one available, cover it with a pastel-colored blotter.

The minimum amount of light considered necessary for study is that received from a 75-watt bulb at a distance of six feet. One approach is to use two lamps of the pin-up type, placed on the wall at either side of the desk.

Or use a 15-watt bulb in a drum-type shade which focuses concentrated light downward and diffused lighting upward. Placement should be on the left side of the desk. Fluorescent bulbs are more efficient and use less energy.

For a study routine, try short eye breaks to protect vision by relaxing the eyes. This can be done simply and quickly by lifting the eyes to focus on distant objects for a few seconds or merely blinking rapidly a few times.

A tackboard above the desk is a good resting place for the eyes and also is a convenient place for memos.

Accompany study breaks with a few drops of eye lotion that is kept handy in the desk drawer. Eye drops will provide soothing relief for eyes made tired by long periods of studying.

A small fan or open window keeps air circulating and is good aid to mental alertness. Cooler air helps "clear the cobwebs" by ridding the body of excess heat that robs the mind and muscles of energy.

Looks the same

The unisex look remains popular for leisure wear that goes on to classes.

Look for denim and ribbed corduroy separates and coordinates for both men and women, and patchwork print shirts, among other styles.

Create your own

Use your imagination to hide or repair rips and tears in school clothes.

Cut or trace fanciful designs on iron-on fabric and position them over the bad spots.

Readers are made

How do your encourage your child to develop a passion for reading?

You can't tell him that creative reading opens doors to information, pleasure, stimulation and new experiences. He has to make the discovery for himself.

If he's going back to school this fall, you can help him benefit from his classroom work and take an active interest in the world around him by encouraging him to read," said Lu Ouida Vinson of the American Association of School Librarians.

"Readers are made, not born," she said. Reading, like any other skill, must be learned and cultivated if it's to become an integral part of a child's life.

Ms. Vinson offers the following suggestions to help parents help their children discover and enjoy reading.

Do remember that reading is an ongoing process. It doesn't begin and end with the school day. Read aloud to your child and let him read to you. Look up new words together. And be an avid reader yourself. Children learn by example and love to imitate.

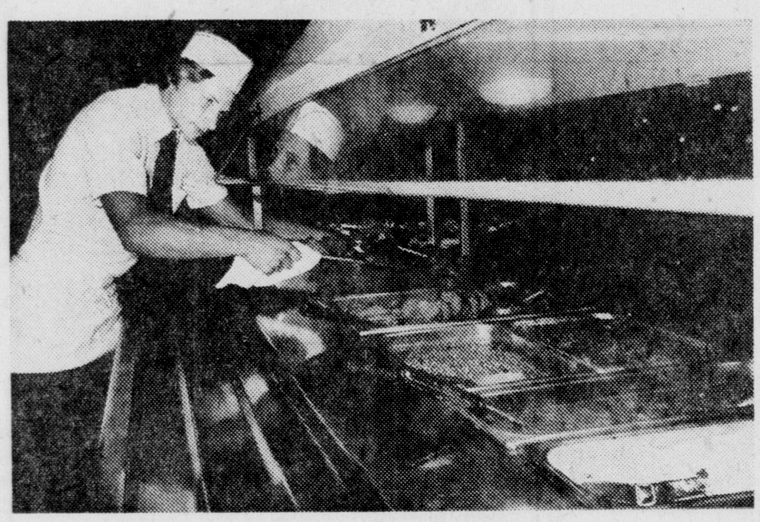
Do be resourceful. Tap each opportunity to whet his appetite for reading. If he shows an interest in a particular animal while visiting a zoo, get a book on the subject at your public library and bring him with you so that he can understand the process of checking out a book.

Do give your child an opportunity to develop and express his own tastes. He needs your guidance and direction, but respect his need for privacy, too, and allow him to develop at his own pace.

Don't be upset if he initially confines his reading to books that you consider a waste of time. Reading should be a pleasure, too.

Do encourage your child to use his school library or the public library to check out books, records, tapes, art prints and other special materials. They may stimulate his mind and encourage him to read to acquire more information.

Finally, be patient. There's not a young person alive who does not have an innate curiosity. It's up to you to help him develop and channel it.



SCANDA HOUSE, located in Mount Prospect Plaza, would like to plan your special club banquet this year. With special banquet facilities and an all-you-can-eat buffet, your banquet will certainly make the grade.

It takes more than a shoe store to fill a prescription.

It takes a shoe professional inside that store; a person who knows children's feet better than the backs of his own hands.

Remember, when it comes to filling shoe prescriptions, don't just look at the shoe store, look at the person in the store.
